How Parnell Fell by the Wayside with Kitty O'Shea

AND ESTRANGED HIS FOLLOWERS.

NEW YORK, October 8 .- [Special.]-The death of Charles Stewart Parnell has pro

cipitated a discussion of the Irish leader-

It may seem strange that this question should attract general attention in an American city, but the fact that New York furnishes the financial backing to the Irish cause explains the interest. The Irish parliamentary party has no leader, properly speaking. The members meet in annual caucus, on the assembling of each parliamentary session, and elect a as his talent fits him for it. It was several years before Mr. Parnell came to be recognized as the leader-in fact, not until after his imprisonment in Kumainham jail.

The Cause of Parnell's Fall.

And, singularly enough, the very hour of triumph was the one of his undoing. When Mr. Gladstone became convinced that his imprisonment of the Irish members was a mistake, he sought means of honorable retreat. Captain O'Shea, an Irish army officer of English proclivities, had a wife-an English wife, by the way, the sister of General Sir Evelyn Wolf. Captain O'Shea was a close friend of the premier, and he agreed to loan him his for diplomatic purposes. Thus the lady became the custodian of Gladstone's secret, and bore his terms to Parnell and associates. The woman's sympathy became aroused toward Mr. Parnell, who, being a bachelor, was invited to Captain O'Shea's house upon his release for recuperation. The captain was away much-the woman forgot her fidelity toward her husband, and became more than a friend to her patient.

The Final Crash. It was years before the scandal thus created became public property. It came to be whispered around Parnell was missing that he could be found at "Kitty's." Kitty took good care that the privacy of her visitor should not be imposed upon. Their "nest-hiding," as the Rev. Henry Ward Beecher called the collusion of affinities, grew more and more public, and only needed the court proceedings to make it newspaper property. Two children born to Mrs. O'Shea while she lived with her husband are declared by her to be entitled to the name of Parnell. Captain O'Shea secured a divorce from the woman last January. After the six months required by law had passed, the guilty couple went through the form of a civil marriage, but to the last the Anglican church, of which they were both members, refused to give the union religious sanction. The Great Secession.

But this is an old story now, and cuts little play in what is to come. When the Irish parliamentary party met last fall, Mr. Parnell held the chair. Though fifty-two out of the eighty-six declared against him, he retained the chair, and the majority retired and elected Justin McCarthy their leader. Of those who adhered to Mr. they might all be denominated mere camp-followers, except Mr. Harrington. Harrington is a good man on the stump, a hard fighter, an eloquent talker, but altogether lacking in the qualities which enter into leadership. In fact, is all heart and no discretion. His heart was so full toward Parnell for what he had done in the past that he could not desert him, however much he deplored his eadership. He is a man of letters, a hisstated of him, would be an elegant figure in an early evening tea party. There is no doubt, however, of his ability when aroused, or of his fidelity to the cause of his country. In the crisis which betell the party one year ago, McCarthy was eminently

JOHN DILLON English leaders, and held their friendship and support when Parnell was doing so much to estrange it. No other man could have reconciled Mr. Gladstone to a resumption of negotiations with the party after Parnell's foolish manifesto, If he should desire to retain the leadership be would have no trouble in doing so. But the fact remains that a bolder man, one readier of parliamentary resource, will be needed. It is probable that Mr. McCarthy will continue to be the chairman of the party, but that the leadership on the floor will be accorded one of three men-William Smith O'Brien, John Dillon or Thomas Sexton.

The Candidates Considered. O'Brien is, perhaps, best known person ally in America. He is highly nervous and excitable, never so much at home as in the midst of recriminating debate, and is, in fact, the stormy petrel of Irish politics. His campaign of Canada several years ago illustrates his character. In the midst of riot and wrangle he was perfectly at home. Mr. O'Brien is an editor, and has done effective work for his native land. His sphere is that of a propagandist, acting under orders. He is forcible on the floor, but does not always clinch his points. John Dillon looks not at all like ar Trishman. He looks like himself exclusively. He is a great student, reads charac ter well, vigorous in debate, unhorses his adversary with skill, and is an excellent allaround parliamentarian. He always understands his position. Mr. Dillon is a man of feeble health, but has great vitality. He has been one of the ablest lieutenants of

Mr. Parnell. Thomas Sexton comes nearer to filling the English idea of a parliamentary leader than any other member of the home rule party. He possesses all of Gladstone's talent for using statistics. He is practical in his views, throws poetry aside, and appeals to the common sense of the people. It has been said frequently that Mr. Sexton revised Mr. Parnell's speeches, and always planned the line of debate in advance. He is a man of the purest moral character, moves on a high plane, and commands attention at all times. Sizing up these men, the leadership is pretty certain to rest been Dillon and Sexton, with the chances in favor of the latter. With Sexton in command of the forces on the floor, the home rule party would be fully as effective as ever, and would be under skilled leadership, which would reap the full fruits of every victory. THE DEAD LEADER.

Parnell To Be Buried at His Old Home.

The Funeral Next Sunday. LONDON, October 8.-Every person in England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales today, who has any connection with or interest in politics, is discussing the three great political events of Stewart Parnell: the demise of the conserva-Hon William Henry Smith, and the great test of strength now fairly commenced at Man-chester between the liberal and conservative parties in the election of a member of parlianent for northeast Manchester, a vacancy having been made in that home of liberalism by the appointment of the present member, Right Hon. Sir James Ferguson, as postmaster general. In this battle, which should be decided tomorrow or next day, Sir James Ferguson, conservative, contests for re-election against Mr. C. P. GOVERNOR HILL'S GREAT RECEPTION

He Is a "Democrat" Before All Things Else.

GROVER CLEVELAND IN THE CHAIR.

He Delivers a Strong Speech, in Which He Calls for United Action in the Campaign Ahead,

NEW YORK, October 8 .- [Special.]-From the beginning of the present campaign in this state, the republican papers and speakers have been claiming that Governor Hill was sulking in his tent, and would not take the stump for nations by making one of the greatest speeches of his life, in which he touched a responsive chord in the breast of New York democrats by repeating his famous phrase:

"I am a democrat."

The Crowd was Immense. At Cooper Union tonight assembled one of the greatest democratic meetings ever held in the city of New York, and the vast auditorium was filled to its atmost capacity, and the people who could not get in filed every street around the building for a dis-

When silence was finally restored, the governor proceeded to deliver a carefully prepared address. Most of it was read from manuscript, and it was a splendid defense of the democratic principles, and a scathing arraignment of republican misrule.

He Defends Loyal Tammany. The governor defended Tammany and its government of this city, and showed how much better affairs were managed here than in the cities in the state where the republicans are in power. He reviewed the records of Fassett and Platt, and compared them with the

Mr. Cleveland's Speech. My fellow citizens: I acknowledge, with much satisfaction, the compliment paid me by selection as your presiding officer last night. I am glad to meet an assemblage of my fellow townsmen on an occasion when their thoughts turn to the po-litical situation which confronts them and at a time when their duty as citizens, as well as members of a grand political organization, should be a subject of their serious consideration. If I may be indulged a few moments, I shall occupy may be indulged a few moments, I shall occupy that much of your time in presenting some suggestions touching the condition and responsibilities of democracy to the people of the country, and the obligation and duty at this particular time of the democracy of our state.

The democratic party has at all times been by profession and by tradition the party of the people. I say by profession and tradition, but I by no means intend to hint, in the use of this expression, that in its conduct and action it has failed to justify its profession or been recreant to its tr ditions. It must, however, be admitted that we have had our seasons; of revival, when the consciousness of what true democracy/really means has been especially awakened, and when we have been unusually aroused to a lively appreciation of the aggressiveness and activity which conscious exactions of those who professed the democratic faith, and who are thus enlisted in the people's cause.

the democratic fatth, and who are thus emisted in the people's cause.

We contemplate to night such a revival and the stupendous results which have thus far attended it. In view of these things, we cannot be bonest and sincere and fail to see that stern and inexorable duty is now at our door. We saw the money and sincere and fail to see that stern and inexorable duty is now at our door. We saw the money of the people unnecessarily extorted from them under the guise of taxation. We saw that this was the result of a scheme perpetrated for the purpose of exacting tribute from the poor and for the benefit of the rich.

We saw the party which advocated and defended this wrong gaining and holding power in the government by a shameless appeal to selfishness, which it invited. We saw people actually burnishing the bonds of misrepresentation and misconception which held them, and saw the sordidness and perversen of all that constitutes good citizenship on every hand and sturdy Americanism in jeopardy.

We saw a party planning to retain partisan ascendency by throttling and destroying the most radical and reckless legislation. We saw waste and extravagance raiding the public treasury and justified in official places, while economy in government expenditures was ridiculed by those who held in trust the people's money.

We saw the national assemblage of the people's representatives transformed into a mere semblance of a legislative assembly by the brute force of a violently created majority and by unprecedented arbitrary rulings, while it was jeeringly declared by those who usurped the functions to be no longer a deliberative body.

Then it was the democratic party, standing forth to do determined battle against those abuses declared by those who usurped the functions to be no longer a deliberative body.

Then it was the democratic party standing forth to do determined battle against those abuses which threatened the welfare and happiness of the people, called upon them to trust it and promised that the warfare should be relentless and uncompromising. As the results of the struggle then entered upon, never has the resistless force of awakened thought of our countrymen been more completely demonstrated, and never has the irresistible strength of the principles of democracy been more fully exemplified. From the west and from the east came tidings of victory. In the popular branch of the next congress the party which lately impudently arrogated to itself the domination of that body will fill hardly more than one-fourth of its seats.

Denocratic governors occupy the enemy's strongholds in Iowa, Massachusetts, Ohio, Wisconsin and Michigan. In Pennsylvania the election of a democratic governor presented conclusive proof of republican corruption exposed and republican dishonesty detected. But with all these results of the just and fearless democratic policy, our work is not yet comepletely done; and I want to suggest to you that any relaxation of efforts within the lines established by the national democracy will be a violation of the pledges we gave the people when we invited their co-operation and undertook their cause. Don't forget we are gathered together to ratify the state nomin tions, and that we are immediately concerned with the state campaign. It seems to me, however, that while national questions of the greatest import are yet unsettled, and when we are on the eve of a nationel campaign in which they must be again impressed upon the attention of the voters of the country, the democracy of the great state of New York cannot, and will not, entirely ignore them.

If we fall to retain ascendancy in the Empire state, no matter upon what issue it is lost, and no matter how much our opponents may seek to avoid the great and important topics, it will be claimed as the verdict of the people against the principles and platform of the national democracy.

It is evident that if our opponents are permitted principles and platform of the national de-mocracy.

It is evident that if our opponents are permitted to choose the line of battle, they will avoid all national issues. Thus far this is plainly their policy. There is nothing strange in this, for they may well calculate that whatever may be their fate in other fields, they have been decisively beaten in the discussion of national questions. This can hardly be expected, that they will come to the field of Waterloo again unless forced to do so.

beaten in the discussion of national questions. This can hardly be expected, that they will come to the field of Waterloo again unless forced to do so.

I am very far from having any fear of the result of a full discussion of the subjects which pertain to state affairs. We have an abundance of reasons to furnish why, on these issues alone, we should be further trusted with the state government; but it does not follow that it is wise to regard matters of national concern foreign to the pending canvass, and especially to follow the enemy in their lead entirely away from the issues they most fear, and which they have the best of reasons to dread. This very fear and dread give, in this particular case, strength and perthemey to the doctrine that the party should at all times and in all piaces be made to feel the consequences of their misdeeds as long as they justify and defend their wrong-doing. Those who adt with us merely because they approve the present position of the national democracy and reforms we have undertaken, and who oppose in national affairs the republican policy and methods, and who still think the state campaign we have in hand has no relation to the principles and voltey which they approve, are in danger of falling into grave error.

Our opponents in the pending canvass, though now striving hard; to hide their identity in the cloud of dust raised by their resteration of irrelevant things, constitute a large factor in the party which still seeks to perpetuate all the wrongs and abuse of republican rule in national affairs. Though they may strive to appear tame and tractable in the state campaign, they but dissemble to gain a new opportunity for harm. In the present condition of affairs it is not to be supposed that any consistent and thoughtful member of the democratic organization can fail to see that it is his duty to engage enthusiastically and zealously in support of the ticket and platform which represent our party in this campaign. They are abundantly worthy and deserving of support on their

With these incentives and with these purposes in view, I cannot believe that any democrat can be guilty of lukewarmness, of slothfulness. With the party united and zealous, with no avoidance of any legitimate issue, with the refusal to be diverted from the consideration of great national and state questions to the discussion of misleading things, and with such presentation of issues involved as will prove our faith in the intelligence of the people of the state, the result cannot be doubtful.

Governor Hill becan his speech with this

Governor Hill began his speech with this declaration:

We insist that no more revenues shall be raised than are necessary for the support of the government, economically administered. The true and principal purpose of every tariff bill should be the raising of revenue, and not the discourage-ment or prohibition of imports for the benefit of favorite interests. Every consumer is more or less injuriously affected by the McKinley bill. It has heavily splendid public record of Flower. On the silver, the tariff and other notable questions, the governor touched, endorsing the demo-The increase on ready-made clothing is

The increase on hosiery is from 40 to 60 per cent; on the cheapest woolen hats the increase is 111 per cent; on cutlery the duty imposed is equal to over 100 per cent. On milk cans, tin pails, tin cans, coffee pots, kettles, cups and other articles of tinware, in all the increase is

But why enumerate further? Sufficient has been exhibited to show the whole bill, while nominally framed by congress, was in fact prepared by a third house—by that large body prepared by a third noise—by that large body of selfish hangers-on.

The democratic party has planted itself firmly and soundly upon the principle of bimetalism. We not only reaffirm that the pithy declaration of national reform of 1884 in the control of the control of the control of 1884 in the control of the control of 1884 in the control of the control of the control of 1884 in the control of the control favor of "honest money, the gold and silver coinage of the constitution," but we go further and denounce the present Sherman silver law, not merely as authorizing the coinage of a silver dollar, whose value is constantly fluctuating, but also "as a false pretense and artful hindrance of the return to free bimetallic coinage," and as tending only to produce a change from gold to silver monometalism.

The parity between the two metals are the intrinsic value of all dollars. Gold and silver are alike impossible without complete bimetallic coinage. If the republican party seeks to attain this parity and this equality by means of such defenseless acts as the compulsory purand denounce the present Sherman silver law, chase law of 1880, the issue is plain between the two party platforms. As well in principle might the secretary of the treasury issue warehouse receipts upon bushels of corn or wheat, or upon piles of silver bullion.

In conclusion the governor said:
Republican victory this fall will be a serious blowat the growth and prosperity of this state. It will have an important effect upon federal politics during the next few years. It may mean republican national victory next year. It will mean an the triumph of McKinleyism and war tariffs. It will mean an indorsement of depreciated currency. It will mean the popular approval of the sectional force bill. It will mean a werdict for bouncies and subsidies. It will give new hope and courage to jobbers and political schemers who have dictated the republican polity and legislation at the national capital since 1888.

A Yery Large Crowd Gathers at Ada, Ohio,

TO LISTEN TO THE GREAT SPEECHES

Made by Governor Campbell and Major McKinley.

CAMPBELL CARRIED THE CROWD By His Argument Against the Protective

Tariff-The Governor on the Silver Question,

been a great day for the democracy. It is the first of the joint debates tween Campbell and McKinley, and the young giant of the demacracy stormed this fort of republicanism in a manner which astonished even his most earnest supporters.

It is no exaggeration to say that the result of today's debate has greatly enhanced the prospect of a democratic majority, not only in this section but throughout the state. The eyes of every voter in Ohio have been turned in this direction today, and the full details of the discussion will be read tomorrow morning in every nook and corner of the state.

Campbell Smiling and Happy. The governor and Major McKinley arrived during the morning, but the speaking did not occur until the afternoon Personally their relations are of the pleasantest character, and they lunched together with a mutual friend shortly after their arrival here.

Campbell has completely recovered from his recent attack, and has gone to work in earnest. He looks smiling and happy, and says he was never in better trim. To a special correspondent of THE CONSTITU-TION he said, pausing a moment in the great throng crowding around him:

"I will whip the fight. I am satisfied that the people of Ohio are going to throw off forever the yoke of republicanism and high tariff, contracted currency and other such things incidental to the republican party from which the people are now suffering. You may say to THE CONSTITUTION'S readers that I feel exceedingly encouraged at the outlook, and I am satisfied that it will tell the people on the morning after the election of the most glorious democratic victory ever won in the west." Talks About The Constitution. "By the way," said a friend of the governor, who has been making a close canvass of the state, "I have been surprised, in canvassing the country districts of Ohio to be met so frequently with, and to hear so often of, THE WEEKLY CONSTITUTION. It must have an astonishingly large circulation." Just as he was about to be assured that it was now almost within sight of 200,000 regular subscribers, and was read each week by more than one million people, the hurrahing crowd enveloped the governor, and he was lost in the multitude gathered around him. McKinley Don't Wear Well. McKinley's campaign does not wear well. He does not speak with the earnestness that characterized his movements at the beginning of the campaign, and it was evident today to those who listened to the joint debate that he was somewhat nervous. He spoke well, but notwithstanding the fact that this is a republican stronghold, he could not manage to carry the crowd with him like Campbell, who unquestionably had the enthusiasm of the

The Decorations. The little town was in gala attire today in honor of its great political event, and not only did every front window present the likeness of either McKinley or Campbell, but from the very tops of trees were suspended, above the streets, portraits of the distinguished Ohioans. Flags and banners and bunting there were friendly rivalry of the decorations displayed by democrats and republicans that the very horizon was obscured by the familiar lines of

Great decorative taste was displayed in of these structures being the non-partisan "welcome" arch which rose above Main street and bore the words "Welcome to their leaders." From the keystone were also suspen portraits of McKinley and Campbell, andlas the various marching clubs marched under arch, they cheered lustily for their respective

On the other hand the democrats retaliated by displaying badges bearing allusions to the inconsistency or impotency of the McKinley bill. Ladies wore a distinctive badge which attracted much attention, and received allusion by Governor Campbell. It bore a portrait of Campbell, and below it were the significant words, "American wool, 24 cents on account of the McKinley bill."

An American tin badge, displayed with equal pride by republicans, contained a portrait of McKinley and bore the words, "Protection and honest money."

There were many prominent Ohio politicians in the grand stand, and both parties were fairly well represented.

At 11:15 o'clock the special train bearing Major McKinley, Senator Humphreys and others, rolled into the depot and cheer after cheer arose from the crowd as the Napoleonic features of the great exponent of protection were recognized by the multitude.

The major bowed, smilingly, to the crowd, and, quickly entering a carriage, was driven to the residence of Professor Lehier, under escor of the various marching clubs, led by an exultant brass band.

Promptly at 12:30 o'clock the Hocking

Valley train, bearing about one thousand democrats and republicans, hove in sight, and attached to the rear was the special car "Buckeye," containing Governor Campbell, Chairman Norton, Lieutenant Governor Marquis and a few other prominent democrats.

A repetition of the enthusiastic ovation extended McKinley was the reception tendered to Campbell, as the cheering multitude pressed around the carriage in waiting to receive the governor. Not a few insisted on shaking hands, and the proceedings were temporarily interrupted, while Governor Campbell extended his handito a few of the more demonstrative.

The band struck up "The Campbells Are Coming," and again a series of enthusiastic democratic cheers rent the air. The governor was rapidly driven to the residence of Professor Lehler, where he met Major McKinley, and they took lunch with Professor Lehler and a few personal friends.

For a brief hour politics and the great struggle which is being waged for partisan supremacy in the Buckeye state were forgotten, and these two gentlemen, each acknowledge by his opponents to be "the prince of good fellows," met in special friendship in the fulfillment of their mutual pledge at the opening of the contest that there should be "campaign of measures and not of men; of principles and not of personalities,"

Among the prominent people on the grand stand were Congressman Storr, Congressman Yoeder, E. W. Poe, republican candidate for auditor of the state; J. P. Bailey, democratic candidate for attorney general; Chairman Norton, of the state central committee; Prolessor P. S. Leiper and many others.

The meeting was presided over by two chairmen, J. M. Fleet, of the Hardin county democratic central committee, on behalf of the democrats, and James C. Howe, of the republican county central committee, on behalf of the It was 1:45 o'clock this afternoon when the meeting was called to order by Rev. Mr. Campbell, Presbyterian minister, and at that time fully 7,000 people were on the grounds. The clerical gentleman introduced the two presiding officers of the meeting and announced that Governor Campbell would be the first speaker.

Chairman Fleet, democratic presiding officer, made a brief speech of congratulation to every-body and announced that Governor Campbell had gained the privilege of opening and closing by casting ballots. The gentleman made a slight bull by alluding inadvertently to Major McKinley as "Governor McKinley," and the republicans cheered lustily while the chairman blushed in confusion Governor Campbell's Speech.

Governor Campbell, after being introduced as one of Ohio's greatest governors, launched "I regret," said Governor Campbell, in opening, "that I have not time to properly present the indictment of that overgrown monster, which, masquerading in the garb of proster, which, masquerading in the garb of pro-tection, subsists on the wage worker and agri-culturist. [Applause.] Yearly farming is growing more junprofitable, our commerce is swept from the seas, and that industry aban-doned; under protection splendid palaces of the protected manufacturers are crowning the hills, while imported Huns, Italians and Bo-hemians are displacing American citizens. These who are sometimes called the 'rotten rich' are delying the people, seeking through a yearl are defying the people, seeking through a venal press to destroy the reputation, honor and estate of any who may wage war vigorously in the cause of the people. [Applause.] We are rapidly reaching the condition which was predicted by Abraham Lincoln, when he uttered these words: 'As a result of war, corporations have been enthroned, and an era of high prices will follow. The money power will endeavor to prolong its reign until all the weaith is aggregated in the hands of a few and the republic is lost. [Applause.]

[Democratic applause.] The American Economist says that the number of people in the United States who own their own homes has in twenty-five years fallen from five-eighths to three-eighths. How many years will it take them to fall to one-eighth?

owned 97 per cent of her wealth, and the people starved to death. That when Persia went down, 1 per cent of her population owned all the land. That when Rome went down, 1,800 men owned all the known world. In 1850, in this country the capitalists owned 37½ per cent of her wealth; yet, he who goes before the people and without comment, without temper, points to these facts that are statistical, is sneeerd as a 'calamity croaker.'"

Bradstreet, an authority in this country, says that the total number of mercantile failures in the United States for the nine months of 1891 are 8,866, as compared with 7,538 in a like period of 1890, an increase of 17 per cent. This is under the McKinley soll. [Applause.] Yet, in 1890, when McKinley accepted the nomination for congress, he said that if his bill passed the senate, this country would win a boom more marvelous than it had over known. [Laughter.]

Where is that boom? [Deuccratic applause.] ["Free sugar," from the republicans.] Were is not for the present abundant crops, the best in ten years, these failures would be a great deal worse than they are.

Who Pays the Tax?

One of the greatest causes for the depression and failures of the present season is that we are paying too muchitaxes. McKinley, on May 5, 1888, at Philadelphia, said that the tariff was a "tax."

paying too muchtaxes. McKinley, on May 8, 1888, at Philadelphia, said that the tariff was a "tax." [Democratic applause.]

Now, who pays that tax? The major says this tax is not paid by the consumer. Now, the supreme court of the United States, an authority in the land, has said who paid tax. In the case of Brown against the state of Maryland, they unanimously announced that "duty on imports is a tax that is paid by the consumer." [Democratic applause.]

In 1870 William Richardson, once a member of the court of claims, and ex-assistant secretary of the treasury, in reply to the inquiry of Senator Sherman, said that the importer adds the duty to the cost of goods and the consumets pay it. Governor Campbel here caused a board to be hoisted upon the stage, on which he demonstrated, by methods of bookkeeping, the state injustice of the high tariff. A man goes to haptand and purchases goods to the amount of school. The average duty on these goods would be $3,000, making $8,000 the total sum paid by the importer. Here another board was holsted, on which his $3,000 was charged up to "profit and loss," indicating that if the importer did not charge the duty to the consumer he would lose, in incating that if the importer did not charge the duty to the consumer he would lose the $3,000, paid in duties. Thus, foreigners did not pay that tax.

Another board was holsted. It was shown that if the foreigner paid the tax the cost price of the goods offered to the American consumer would be $6,000, instead of $8,000, which would be about free trade. Now, when gentile reciprocity comes in, we would have not a little, one-sided reciprocity with the little countries of South America, bat substantial reciprocity with England, France and the world. (Applause.]

The duty on giass is 140 per cent, fast year we and imported one hundred sixty thousand dollars worth of plate giass. This was the value of the goods in England, yet upon that glass there was paid $222,000 duties, $65,000 more than the cost of the goods in England, yet upon t

SAM JONES IN ROME,

Where He Has an Interesting Chat with the Grand Jury.

A TILT WITH JUDGE MADDOX

The Bench and the Pulpit Seem to Be at Cross Purposes-A Sensational

Day's Proceedings. Rome, Ga., October 8.-[Special.]-Sam

Jones was in Rome today. He said he was coming to see the grand jury, and he came.

This whole matter has been the topic of conversation in Rome, but there is another turn in affairs. Sam Jones says outside the grand jury room things about some fines Judge Maddox placed on eight prominent citizens for gambling. He laughs at the judge. The judge doesn't smile, but Judge Maddox defends himself, giving a statement of the cases, and says if insinuations are meant that he would have done otherwise on different persons, the man who says it lies. Mr. Jones may have only been jesting, but here are the dings from beginning to end.

That magnificent charge of Judge John Maddox to the grand jury last week set the ball in motion, and the grand jury the very next day acted upon the judge's sugges-tion, for they subpensed Rev. Sam Jones and the Rev. Sam Small to appear | before them to tell what they know about all the devilment in Rome. The judge's charge was printed by THE CONSTITUTION. Among other things he

"If a minister of the gospel can stand up in churches, warehouses or other places, and make such charges as I have heard, there surely must be some foundation for them. I want you, gentlemen of the grand jury, to investi-gate these charges. If they are so they ought to be looked into it by you; if they are false then it ought to be known, for it would be a reflection on this community. It was also said that there were men in this town you look into this matter, and if you will just have them before me, I will enforce the laws. If I don't, you just have your representatives to impeach me before your legislature. Now, gentlemen, you can have any man in the state before you.

The Preachers Summoned. That warehouse idea was the keynote; it meant only one thing; the grand jury saw the point, and Rev. Sam Jones and Rev. Sam Small were subpensed. They had only a few weeks before held their grand revival in the warehouse, where hell, the devil and Rome were lit into with a halleluiah lick. The Rev. Samuel Jones, when he got his subpena, tele graphed that it would give him great pleasure to appear before that body on Thursday, if it d them, and today was the day. The Rev. Sam Small, it is said, never got his subpena for he was in Massachusetts, but he read about it in THE CONSTITUTION. A gentleman sai to THE CONSTITUTION that Mr. Small had written a letter to the grand jury.

'What did he have to say?" asked the reporter. "It was in reference to that utterance in the warehouse, that if the people went away from there cursing him, he would tell who they gambled with, and about their getting drunk and spending nights with women not their wives. He said he couldn't tell them who they were, but his informants might be able The informants mentioned were four prominent citizens of Rome."

Mr. Jones returned at 2 o'clock a. m. from Kentucky; at 10:20 o'clock he walked up to the courthouse and was ushered into the presence of the grand jury. He gave them a talk of a half hour, or perhaps, three-fourths, duration. A great crowd stood in front of the courthouse, but the grand jury room was up stairs and a bailiff carefully guarded its sacred portals. Nothing could be learned until Mr.

When Mr. Jones came down he was followed by a drove of reporters. They just besieged him. He wouldn't talk then, but he said if they would meet him at 11:45 o'clock he would give the whole thing away. At the appointed hour, in the office of the Rome Brick Company, Mr. Jones was occupying an easy chair. His overcoat collar was turned up and the old slouch hat hung on his head in lackadasical manner. Mr. Jones said he was ready to talk, and the ball began.

Mr. Jones Talks.

"Mr. Jones, do you think the grand jury in sending you this subpena meant it as as an act of discourtesy?"

'I think not. I found them a fine body of men, conscientions in the discharge of their duty, diligently inquiring into the lawlessness and immoralities alleged." "Did you give them a lecture, Mr. Jones?"

"No I just answered questions." "What did they want with you?"

"They wanted to know the grounds for the charge that I made that every saloon keeper in Rome ought to be in the chaingang," "Did you give them the information?"

"I simply referred the grand jury to the records of the city court, where they had plead guilty to seventy-five different violations of ths and the laws of Georgia." "Did they question you on the assertion you made as to the corruption of Rome?

"How did you answer them?"

"I referred them to the columns of The Rome Tribune and to the record of the ten saloons in the lower end of Broad street, from 4 o'clock p. m. Saturday until midnight. I never made an assertion that the records of the courts do not demonstrate the truth of." "Does the grand jury want Mr. Small?"

Mr. Jones answered, "I think they do, but they have already tried eight of Small's rabbits, and are trailing several more to their dens, but Small's rabbits do not bring much in this market. I am surprised that they brought no more than ten dollars costs, for they were all fine, rabbits, and the judge adlarge vertised that they would bring their full value. The rabbits themselves were surprised, I understand, at the drop in value in the afore said market. That was a magnificient charge delivered to the grand jury in this city last week. I only wish the fines of the above law breakers had been in line with the aforesaid charge. Rabbits and flop-eared hounds, the one under hare and the other not admitted, to the contrary notwithstanding. The saloon keepers of Rome, the law says, shall make oath to keep the laws of the state before a license is issued to them, and they have, in pleading guilty to these seventy-five charges of violation of law, proven themselves guilty of false swearing, or if they did not properly take the oath, then they are guilty of selling liquor illegally, so they are in a hole either

About this time the president of the law and order league walked in, and Mr. Jones shook hands with him. Somebody asked if it was so that one of the law and order league had been indicted for toting pistols.

"That's the report," was the reply. es, turning to the crowd, asked if any of the men who had plead guilty to gamb-ling said, "That a d—n half breed had given them away," but nobody could answer it. "What about not letting him into the game my more?" but nobody could inform Mrs

A Grand Juryman Appears.

Grand Juryman A. N. Tedicastle came in to see Mr. Jones, and they held an animated confab out in the backyard.

Judge Maddox was waiting in the front office for Mr. Tedicastle, and Mr. Jones in a few minutes walked it, and they pleasantly chatted for a few minutes. Mr. Jones drove out with Mr. T. F. Howell for dinner, and left

Judge Maddox was at the courthouse this afternoon, and was approached by THE CON-STITUTION reporter. "Have you heard what Mr. Jones says oout these fines, judge?"

"Yes, I have heard something about it." "The remarks of Mr. Jones will be printed, judge, and THE CONSTITUTION will print the stances of those gaming cases, and the

$10 fine and cost, if you will give them." Judge Maddox said: "Yesterday afternoon while calling the motion docket in these cases the parties wanted to plead guilty. stated here in court that they were technically guilty-that is, that they put up an ante a played for a small sum, but when the game was over they returned the money. This was the showing made. I fined them, though they were only technically guilty, $10 and costs amounting to about $50. Now, I want to say the intimation that I have protected the gen tlemen you speak of, or would have put a different fine on other persons under same circumstances, is absolutely and wilfully false, and the man who utters o insinuates such things knows he lies when he

There was another thrust at Judge Maddon about flop-eared hounds. For only the day before yesterday in the superior court, Judge Maddox corrected a young attorney who said "by George" in arguing a criminal case.

"You must not use such language in the su-perior court, sir. The first thing you know you will be calling people flop-eared hounds. I know that it is done in some places, but you can't do it here."

This remark was told Mr. Jones, and in his interview he refers delicately to it. On the streets this evening great is the talk over the Sam Jones visit and its outcome. It beats the "lord's" trial all hollow.

ARRESTED FOR PERJURY. Two Colored School Teachers Placed in

Jail at Carrollton. CARROLLTON, Ga., October 8.—[Special.]— Two ladies of color are behind the bars today, accused of false swearing. They write their names Lizzie Graham and her sister, Lucinda Graham. They wanted to teach school in this county last year, and failed to be examined at the proper time. This prohibits an examination by law, unless the parties make affidavit that they were sick on examination day, or for other providential causes. They made affidavit to Hon. M. R. Russell that their sister died and was buried on the day set apart by law for examinations, and M. Russell. apart by law for examinations, and Mr. Russell examined them, but later found out their perfidy, and they were presented to the grand jury and indictments found for perjury. They taught their schools, but they heard of the in-distance their schools, but they heard of the indictments before they made their reports and skipped for Birmingham. Sheriff Hewitt located them there, and they were arrested yes-terday morning and Ed Hewitt left yesterday evening at 4 o'clock, and arrived back this morning at 7 o'clock, being gone only fifteen hours. The girls are now behind the bars to answer the charge.

CRAZED BY WHISKY.

A Drunken Father Pursues His Daughter and Threatens to Kill Her.

ALMON, Ga., October S.— [Special.]—Thursday night the peaceful slumbers of a household were disturbed by screams from a young and tender girl pursued by a drunken father threatening her life. A gentleman hurrying to the door, the poor girl begged him to go to her mother, whom she feared the whisky-crazed man would murder. Going a short discreased man would murder. crazed man would murder. Going a short dis crazed man would murder. Going a short distance from the house he was halted by the words, "hands up" from the drunken man, who stood gun in hand ready to fire. The gentleman returned to his house, the drunken fellow following and demanding entrance, which, being denied, he knelt with his face on the ground and fell to praying. After he became more quiet he was permitted to enter, his gun taken from him, when he again knelt and prayed and then begged the neighbor to kill him.

This man when sober is a kind and affectionate husband and father, a peaceable, ac-commodating neighbor and has made many friends during his short residence among our people. For obvious reasons, names are not

Two Peculiar Trees.

WAYCROSS, Ga., October 8.—[Special.]—
There are two very peculiar looking trees growing at Waresboro, Ga., known as the eucolyptus, or malarial absorber variety. It is said that these trees are very effective in absorbing malarial germs. They are very hard to get to grow. A gentleman who was living at Albany at the time tells us that some years ago when an epidemic of malarial fever was raging in that town the board of trade ordered raging in that town the board of trade ordered a number of these trees from Italy and tried to get them to grow, without success. They would not grow in red clay land. The color of the trunk is of a light green, while the leaves are of deep green.

HOWELL'S

Told Before the Jury at Warrenton Yesterday.

LETTER WRITTEN BY CAPTAIN M'GRATH

Put Him Into Such a Frenzy That He Could Not Restrain Himself from Killing Him on Sight,

WARRENTON, Ga., October 8 .- [Special.]e most important case for trial at this term Warren superior court, that of the state ersus Ashley V. Howell, for the killing W. J. McGrath on the morning of June 11, st, was called this morning.

The thirty minutes intervening between 8:45 o'clock and 9:15 o'clock, was consumed in getting the witnesses for both sides into court. At 9:15 o'clock both sides announced ready. The prisoner was brought into the courttween his attorneys, Colonel Thomas M. Hunt and E. P. Davis. He was dressed in a neat suit of black, and on the lappel of his coat he wore a tastily arranged bouttonaire. His face wore an expression of confidence, notwith-standing there could be seen the terrible strain under which he must be laboring.

Immediately thereafter the work of getting a jury was commenced. At 10 o'clock the names of sixty jurors had been called, out of which ten jurors were secured. Here the court gave the recess of one hour, in order that the sheriff might summons twenty-four more talesmen.

During the intermission, the wife of the prisoner, accompanied by two sisters, and a like number of of sisters of her husband, and others akin to both parties, came into court, and occupied seats within the bar and aroun the prisoner. The meeting of husband and wife was tender and affectionate, but the usual display of love was avoided, as if prearranged.

During the early proceedings, Captain John McGrath, father of the victim of young Howell, sat within the bar, immediately in front of Howell. His head was bowed and every feature of his face portrayed grief and suffering at the untimely death of his only boy. When the intermission was given, he quickly left his seat, and wandered to the street below, only to return when court again convened.

When the intermission of an hour had ended, the court found an insufficient number of talesmen present, so court adjourned to ?

Judge McWherter rapped for order at a few minutes past 2 o'clock, and the work of swearing two other jurors commenced. At 2:25 o'clock the jury was completed. The fellowing gentlemen constitute the jury: John W. McCord, Jerry Dawes, A. H. Reese, W. V. Hersy, H. A. Leekhart, H. C. Crenshaw, K. M. Hall, J. W. Wright, Frank Bales, John M. Wersham, J. R. Johnson, A. H. Sanderson The Evidence.

The jury secured, the work began. The ess introduced was Judge H. H. Fitzpatrick, the postmaster, who swore as fol

"On the morning of June 11th, Captain W. J. McGrath came into the postoffice to pay me some money. He was standing inside the private inclosure, just in front of and almost in the door. I had just written a receipt for the money and was signing my name to it, when I heard a voice, which I recognized as that of the defendant, saying: 'Yes, you wrote my wife a letter.'

"Simultaneous with his expression the shooting commenced. I did not see the defendant, but saw the pistol as the last two shots were fired. McGrath was falling as these struck him. I saw defendant as he was leaving the room, pistol in hand."

The next witness was Marshall T. N. Shurly, who swore: "I heard pistol shots in the direckilling. I walked diagonally across the square toward the courthouse, when I met Mr. Ashley Howell, pistol in hand. I told him to halt. whereupon he came forward and surrendered himself, and his arms."

The shirt and vest worn by Captain Mc-Grath on that fateful morning were shown the witness, but he could not positively identify

A. B. Higgs was next sworn. "I say Ashley Howell the morning after the burning of the blacksmith shop of David Phillips, which burning occurred in March last. He expressed much sympathy for Mr. Phillips, saving: 'I will be one of a hundred men to give him $1 each to help him up again. Howell said he had heard that Cantain Mo Grath had said that he (Howell) had set fire to the shops. 'If McGrath will tell me this I will kill him. I want to kill him any how, said Howell.

Here the state rested its case. There was very little cross-questioning of the witnesses, and everybody in the courtroom, and there hundreds, began to feel that the case would not be so sensational after all, but not so. The attorneys for the defense retired, and after a short consultation returned and placed the prisoner on the stand to make his state ment. Death-like silence prevailed, and the ears of the spectators were strained to catch the words as they fell from young Howell's lips. The reading of the statement continued until the prisoner began to recite the contents of the which the deceased had written his wife. The counsel for the state interrupted at this point, and a hot legal battle ensued Judge Mc Whorter ruled in favor of the state, and the defense begged to withdraw the pris-oner's statement. This brought out the letter. The defense placed on the stand Dr. R. W. Hubert, W. C. English and Will Wilhart to prove that the handwriting in this letter was that of Captain McGrath. The letter was next read to the jury by Colonel E. P. Davis. Colonel Davis prefaced the reading of the letter by saying that the contents of the letter were so terribly black and vulgar that he would read the letter loud nough for the jury to catch its contents, and not for the packed house. The letter was then read from beginning to end. It abounded in the vilest language, and caused a blush of shame to mount to the cheeks of many.

The Prisoner's Statement. The prisoner was then placed upon the stand for the second time, and commenced the reading of his statement. The following is a synopsis The reading was clear and distinct, and the

"On the second day of April, 1891, we were married at the home of my father in Warrenton, by the Rev. J. H. Washburn, having pre-viously made my arrangements so to do. I and my wife left Warrenton the very night of our arriage and went to Atlanta, where I took her to No. 83 Lloyd street, where I secured rooms, and I at once went to work with Traynham & Ray, with whom I had previously con tracted. On about May 10th—I am not certain as to the exact date—an express package was taken from the express office in Atlanta by stopping.

"It contained cut tobacco cigarros, cigarettes and stationery. It was addressed to my wife. I did not know, but supposed some friend of ours had sent it to myself and wife. About May 12th I went to the general delivery post-office in Atlanta for my mail. This letter was handed me. If you will notice, gentlemen, this letter is addressed to Mrs. A. V. Howell, this letter is addressed to Mrs. A. V. Howell, care of Mr. W. Howell, Atlanta. I have a half brother in Atlanta by the name of W. D. Howell, showing that whoever wrote the letter did not know the party in whose care it was sent. When I got the letter I opened and read it. It was a great surprise to me. As soon as I had read the letter I took it to my wife and read it to her, asked her who wrote it, and why it was written. She wept bitterly that any one should have written her such a letter, and told me, with all the emphasis that she could com-snould have written ner such a letter, and told me, with all the emphasis that she could command, that she knew nothing about the letter, and knew not who wrote it. I stated to her that if she had deceived me before we were married—if she had been guilty of the conduct insinuated in the letter before we were married—that if she would tall and appearing wifely fielding in before we were married—that if she would tell and promise wifely fidelity in the future I would forgive her, and we would go ahead and live happly together. I believed she was innocent. I believe it now.

the was innocent. I believe it now.

The Wife's Innocence.

"After I had read the letter to my wife and heard her denial of knowing anything about it, and knowing that the same party must have written the letter that sent the express package, I began to investigate who was the author of it. I did not have the money at once to come to Warrenton, so I sent the letter to my brother, Fay Howell, with the request that he nvestigate it. I asked him to ascertain from the express agent who sent the expres package. Several days after I received a letter from him, saying that Captain W. J. Mc-Grath was the sender of the express package, and he believed the author of the letter addressed to my wife. I came to Warrenton to ascertain for myself who it was paying my wife these attentions, who it was that had written her this letter. I wished to put a stop

After satisfying myself that Captain McGrath was the man that was paying these attentions to my wife, and that he was the author of the insulting letter to her, I was troubled and perplexed. I knew not what to do. I had no means to go to a distant state, and did not know but he would follow me there.

"On the eve of the 10th of June, I started around to my brother Fay's, where I was stopping, and as I walked along I was overtaken by Gus Cody, a very reliable negro, who had for a long while been in the employ of the Georgia Railroad Company, who had recently got his hand mashed on the cars, and had a free pass on the road. He told me that recently got his hand mashed on the cars, and had a free pass on the road. He told me that Captain McGrath had that evening tried to get him to go to Atlanta and take a note to my wife. I asked him what he was going to do about it. He said he would not go. I called Fay out. Gus repeated to him the story just told me. We asked him to meet us at English & Co.'s grocery store the next morning. I did not sleep any that night after what he again told me. I was goaded to despair by the thought that my young wife, hardly more than a child, was young wife, hardly more than a child, was being followed by a man who sought to de-bauch her, and that her wifely purity and the sanctify of my home was being constantly threatened. I came up town the next morning and waited for Gus Cody. He did not come. I still waited, and still he did not come. I thought Captain McGrath had succeeded in getting him to go to Atlanta on the train.

The Fatal Meeting.

About 10 o'clock, or 11 o'clock I was sitting at Warren DeBeaugrine's store. I had a letter in my hand and went over to the post-office to mail it. When I went into the office I saw McGrath standing behind the railing, seemingly sending some package through the

my wife."
"He said nothing, as I think, but laughed scornfully in my face and turned from me. I scornfully in my face and turned from me. I was so overcome at the presence of the man who had been seeking, and was still seeking, to do me this great wrong, and believing that he might accomplish his purpose and the more overcome by his significant and sneering manner, when I accosted him about it, that I shot him. I know it was not malice in my heart that caused me to shoot him. Could I have, without injury, and great injury to my own family and my honor, avoided the necessity of taking his life, how gladly would I have done so.

I have done so. "I desire to say further, gentlemen, that I am no murderer. No man has a higher regard for human life than I have. I took Captain McGrath's life to prevent his wronging me more than one man can wrong another. To take a man's life is not so bad as to debauch his home. I loved my wife de-votedly. I believed in her virtue and fidelity to me implicity, and I sought only to protect her and my home. I am not infallible, but I claim the protection of the law. I have done nothing more than the law says I may do, and what any other honorable man would Court adjourned when Howell had finished his statement till tomorrow morning. The proceedings tomorrow will be highly sensa-tional. The letter written to McGrath by Mrs. Howell will, no doubt, come out, and Mutilated Body of a White Man Caused the Train to Stop.

AMERICUS, Ga., October 8 .- [Special.]-The undden stoppage, near Rochelle, of the westbound passenger train over the Savannah, Americus and Montgomery railroad from Savannah, Saturday morning, created a commotion among the passengers, who learned to their horror that the delay was caused by the mutilated body of a white man in front of the train. He was a white man, and thought to be of the name of Culbert. From the best information the reporter could gain he had been in Rochelle the night before and had started home on the railroad and had lain down on the track and gone to sleep, when he was struck b There were some who believed that he was first murdered and then placed on the track to agert suspicion, but there seems to be no suffi-cient evidence to warrant such conclusion, as there was not a wound on the body which might not easily have been occasioned by the passing of the train over it.

The remains were carried to his home and prepared for burial.

Those were the cries that proceeded from Essie Widgeon's bagnio, which Policeman Jones answered.

Before he got there, however, women were rushing about the streets like beings mad. One of them was pale and bleeding. A road cart was driven up to the door, and she got in it and was driven rapidly toward the union depot and the business portion of the city. On Fourth street a hack was met, which had already been telephoned for. The woman got in the hack. She was driven down Fourth street and turned up Third street, on her way

This man grabbed Rouse's pistol and held it away from his head.

During the struggle the pistol was fired. The ball did no damage, however.

A desperate struggle ensued between the two men. Rouse belabored the young man with his fists, gouged at his eyes and threw him heavily against the bed. He tried to shoot again, but the pistol was empty. Seeing that his pistol was of no avail to him Rouse fied the room.

The young man then examined his wounds. He found himself badly bruised about the face and eyes and a bad cut on his head, which was caused by the blow against the bed.

Rouse rushed into the middle room of the house. He locked the door, then drew his knife, opened it, and drew the blade across his

At first it was thought that Rouse had escaped. But when the officer and the women went to go into the room they found the door locked. They heard Rouse groaning within. Then they knew he was not dead.

Attempted Suicide. The door was broken. Those who went in found Rouse in the bed, his throat cut from the right ear almost to the left and the blood flowing from the wound in clots and torrents. The sheets around him were matted with blood, and blood had clotted on his black hair, while his clothes and face and hands were as red as blood itself.

Dr. J. C. Johnson went to the young man and Dr. E. G. Ferguson to Rouse.
Dr. Johnson found his patient wounded as has been stated. His wounds are not in the

Dr. Ferguson found that Rouse had cut himself on the right side of the neck, the wound self on the right side of the neck, the wound running almost from ear to ear. The knife had severed the branches of the small arteries and external jugular vein. It was a serious wound, and it will be a wonder if Rouse pulls through with his life. He lost much blood before the doctor arrived, and at 9 o'clock fainted from exhaustion. The chances are all against his recovery. He Vows Vengeand

Rouse, though believed to be a dying man, talked freely though excitedly of the affair. He said, interrupting the story with many oaths, that he meant to kill the woman, and that he hoped he had. Then he told that he that he hoped he had. Then he told that he cut his own throat; that he was ready to die and wanted to, if the woman would just die. He said that he meant to kill the woman and then shoot himself, but he had used all the cartridges he had, so was obliged to resort to his knife. He declared that he would have killed himself instantly if the knife hadn't been so dull.

While this was going on at the house Dr. H. A. Mettauer was attending to the woman at his office. He found that one of the balls had his office. He found that one of the balls had gone squarely in her breast, and that the other had made a terrible wound in her head. Her wounds are serious, but there is nothing necessarily dangerous about them.

Zach Rouse is well known and well connected. He was raised about Warwick. His inther is one of Macon county's oldest and best citizens. As has been said, he traveled for Siesel & Hecht for a while.

Essie Widgeon came to Macon from Jack-sonville some time ago. She has had an eventful life in Macon. She once made an effort to reform here, but she failed through temptation, and not from any willingness her part, it is thought.

carried away with our little city and the surrounding country.

Mrs. C. Philpot, wife of one of our leading citizens, died yesterday and was buried here today. Mrs. Philpot was a devout Christian, and did more to build up the Methodist church than any one person in the community. She had many friends who mourn her death.

The streets of Cedartown are packed with cotton wagons, from not only our county but many others. We expect greater receipts this year than in several.

QUAY'S ADMISSION

That the Republican Campaign in Pennsylvania Is in Bad Shape.

A CONSULTATION OVER THE SITUATION.

The Outcome of Which Is Gloom and Political Despair.

THE WAR ON GOVERNOR CAMPBELL

Who Started It-The Governor's

WASHINGTON, October 8 .- [Special.]-The president today had a conference with Senator Quay and Postmaster General Wanamaker, d Collector Cooper, of Philadelphia, with reference to the situation in Pennsylvania, and the effect the scandalous exposures of offial crookedness in Philadelphia would have he election this fall. They were all pretty lly discouraged at the prospect, and Sena-Quay, when asked about the situation by timate friend, replied that things were in bad shape. He said it in such a way as to leave the impression that the "things" referred to would go in November to that pop-

Governor Campbell's bold stand against the republican newspapers which are printing ed to break down his credit and personal al circ es here today. All avas are cens by the conspirators is watched with and ti Commercial Gazette printed it, is suffisee beyound the length of their noses it. Since the experience of the amercial Gazette with the bellot-box ery plot, two years ago, that paper is con red a veritable hoodoo. Among sensible, far seeing republican politicians, the attack egr gious blunder, which must necessarily ct, and not a few telegrams have been sent McKinley's managers today, advising them call off their dogs. Governor Foster and er prominent Ohio republicans, it is undercondemn the campaign tactics inparated by the Commercial Gazette, and not unlikely to result in McKinley's over-w. Campbell may be hard up, they say, the attempt to turn that fact by malicious aggeration to campaign uses, will only e sympathy, and its effect, from the stand-nt of purely practical politics, cannot help 'Il Campbell's indebtedness becomes the aid a republican politician this even-"McKinley might as well hang his harp ne willows and go down by Euphrates to p. The people who are hard up outnumber who are not ten to one, and they would nd together on the issue. I think McKinimself ought to come out like a man and at a stop to this thing."

A Precedent Quoted. "If he doesn't the result of this attempt to nder Governor Campbell will be very apt to as the gubernatorial campaign in Indiana 1876, when Benjamin Harrison and James Williams were the opposing candidates. e republicans in that campaign adopted a of slandering the democratic candidates this course is persisted in Ohio, McKinley's pporters may expect a similar result.

"Some of the republicans think they see in the inexplicable course of The Commercial Gazette, not only in this matter but during the entire campaign, internal evidence that things. They believe, believe, that McLean desires to Commercial Gazette, the major portion or the stock of which is now in posession of his agents, in order that he may be able to secure actual control of that newspa-per property. This explanation is eagerly pounced upon by some who have been in the habit of using Mr. McLean as a scarecrow for years, but it probably has little foundation in fact. While the conservative republicans here ondemn these attacks on Governor Campbell, there are a lot of Ohio republican whipper nappers who have been standing around the hotel lobbies here two weeks chattering like nagpies about Governor Campbell's debts. They make mountains out of warts, and their gossiping tongues have undoubtedly furnished gossiping tongues have undoubtedly furnished the inspiration for many of the absurd stories that have floated back to Ohio. The New York Recorder, which originally printed The Commercial Gazette article, this morning arints, in a prominent place on the first page, dovernor Campbell's demand for a full and omplete retraction. Editorially it makes no omment, however. This will probably not atlay Governor Campbell, and suit for libel, in the case of The Commercial Gazette, is kely to be instituted.

bout Bad Railroad and Mail Facilities Telegraph Change.

OPELIKA, Ala., October S.—[Special.]—Your correspondent was shown a communication from Superintedent Terrell to Captain D. B. No reflection whatever was intended for the

No reflection whatever was intended for the postoffice officials. They discharge their duties diligently and efficiently. The complaint was: The train was almost invariably in hour or two late, and the fault was with he "Air-Line" road, as the Atlanta and Vest Point railroad and Western of Alabama hake excellent time, but are delayed by the Air-Line" in Atlanta. The delay does cause such inconvenience, while the northern mails could be received several hours sooner if the rain was on time. The postmaster is not expected to remain up till 9 or 10 o'clock at night and open it. The result is, this mail is not received until next day. We are also informed that the postmaster at Auburn—a very and received until next day. We are also informed that the postmaster at Auburn—a very important station, the location of the Agricultural and Mechanicai college—would remain at the office and open the mail every night if the train was on time. Another great inconvenience resulting from the delay and a cause of complaint is numbers of people from Notasulga, Locchapoka, Auburn and the surrounding country visit Opelika on the morning train and have to wait at the depot several hours for the train, and get home near midnight. Something certainly ought to be done to make better time.

The Postal Telegraph Company has purchased the Merchant telegraph, which extends from Opelika to LaFayette and Roanoke, and ill extend it to Anniston and other points, fork has commenced and posts are being put up.

Professor Wallace, the director of music, has organized an orchestra, and proposes to have the finest music in the state.

THE IRISH LEADERS.

all-absorbing political questions is the sudden death at Walsingham Terrace, Brighton, on Tuesday night of the great Irish leader, Charles Stewart Parnell. Newspapers of the British isles are full of the story of his death, and of personal reminiscences of the "Irish Rienzi," as The Dublin Mail terms him, and contain many interviews in regard to the future possi-bilities of the Irish party. Even continental newspapers, slow to understand or take hold newspapers, slow to understand or take hold of any subject of peculiarly domestic interest in Great Britain, pay considerable attention to the death of the Irish leader.

Dr. James E. Kenney, member of parliament for South Cork, and treasurer of the National league, in an interview published today, says that a month ago he was suddenly summoned to attend Mr. Parnell, who appeared to be suffering from debility. Dr. Kenney, upon that occasion, advised Mr. Parnell to place some restraint upon his appearances in public, particularly when such appearances in public, particularly when such appearances in cessitated taking part in political debates, or making campaign speeches.

Mr. Parnell, however, did not take Dr. Kenney's advice, but continued to push the fight with all possible vigor and untiring earnestness.

Mrs. Parnell is still prostrated with grief.

with all possible vigor and untiring earnestness.

Mrs. Parnell is still prostrated with grief, and, though weak and exhausted from long watching and the terrible shock experienced, she possitively refuses to partake of any food or refreshments, and will see only her daughter. Alterations being made at the quarry-house at Bletchingly, Surrey, where Mr. and Mrs. Parnell intended to take up their residence at about the end of the present month, have been stopped.

A family council will be held today at Walsingham Terrace, and necessary arrangements for the funeral will be made. After consultation with a committee of Irish members of parliament who have been deputed to take part in such preparations, it has been decided to hold a postmortem examination of the body of Parnell, with the view of settling definitely the cause of death.

of Parnell, with the view of settling definitely the cause of death.

John Dillon, most set of parliament for East Mayo, and William O'Brien, member of parliament for East Cork, who are both in Ireland, were seen yesterday and asked for an expression of views for publication in regard to the death of Parnell. Both gentlemen referred to distinctly refused to say anything upon the subject. A dispatch from Brighton sent at 3 o'clock n.m. says the decler's cer. sent at 3 o'clock, p.m., says the doctor's cer-tificate, which had just been filed, states that Parnell's death was caused by rheumatic fever, resulting in excessive temperature and failure of the heart.

It has been eventually decided at the family council, held this afternoon, that Parneil's remains shall be accorded a public funeral and the body be interred at Avonda e, County Wicklow, Ireland, where the dead leader was born.

His Parliament Friends.

A delegation from the members of parliament who followed the lead of Parnell to the last arrived at Brighton this afternoon. After receiving the doctor's certificate giving the final cause of Parnell's death, they adopted a resolution expressing the deepest sorrow at the sudden and unexpected death of their chief, and heartfelt sympathy with Mrs. Parnell. The eldest daughter of Parnell was present

The eldest daughter of Parnell was present at the meeting of the Parnellite delegates, and conveyed messages between the delegation and her mother.

Timothy Healy, probably a member of parliament for North Longford, and probably Parnell's most bitter opponent, was asked today for an expression of opinion upon the political situation. He declined to say anything regarding politics, remarking: "As Harrington has declined to make a statement concerning the intention of his party, we, for our part, are determined to maintain a truce for the present."

Arrangements for the Funeral. Arrangements for the Funeral.

It has now been decided that the funeral ceremonies of Parnell will be held at the cemetery in Glasnevan village, about three and a half miles north of Dublin, on Sunday morning, and will be taken in state to the city hall, and from there the funeral will proceed.

Evensylve preparations have already been hall, and from there the funeral will proceed. Extensive preparations have already been commenced in view of the monster demonstration which is sure to follow.

Redmond and Mahoney are in charge of the details of the funeral. The body will be placed in a leaden coffin. The medical authorities have decided to forego the proposed postmorrem. Dr. Cowers and two other physicians carefully examined the body before it was deposited in the coffin, and they agreed that there was no necessity for an examination. The remains have undergone a rapid change—so rapid indeed that it has been found advisable to close the shell. There will be no religious ceremony here. The body will be conveyed to London Saturday, arriving there in time to catch the Irish night mail train.

Will Attend in State.

Will Attend in State.

Dublin, October 8.—At a meeting of the corporation of the city of Dublin, resolutions of regret at the death of Mr. Parnell were passed and the lord mayor and members of the corporation were empowered to attend the funeral in their robes of state.

At a meeting of members of the Parnellite party of West Clare, a resolution calling for John Redmond to assume the leadership of the party was passed. Resolutions of deep regret at the death of Parnell were also unanimously adopted.

Most of the stores throughout the leading towns of Ireland are closed today out of respect for the memory of the dead leader.

He Dined with Parnell. CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., October 8.—[Special.]—Rev. William Walsh, pastor of the Catholic church of this city, who has just returned from Ireland, said today: "I dined with Charles Stewart Parnell two weeks ago at Dublin, and at that time he was in excellent health. He was a valuable man to the cau-e espoused, but it will not suffer, for men are rising on all bands in Ireland who can ably fill Parnell's piace. Parnell's memory will rather serve as a stimulus for more per sistent work by the advocates of home rule."

firm received one thousand four hundred dollars' worth of pearl buttons from Austria and the duty on these buttons was just $3,000, or a trifle over 200 per cent. Who paid that duty? [Laughter.] Did the foreign manufacturer pay nearly two thousand dollars for the privilege of sending pearl buttons to us? [Laughter and applause.]

The McKinley bill provides that 99 per cent of the duties on home articles shall be refunded, provided these articles are exported. Last year the Standard Oil Company imported tin to this country upon which they paid more than a million and a quarter tax or duty. If they did not; if the foreigher instead paid that duty, then the United States put its hand in our pockets and presented a quarter tax or duty. If they did not; if the foreigner instead paid that duty, then the United States put its hand in our pockets and presented the Standard Oil. Company with a million and a quarter of our money, for this amount was refunded to the Standard Oil Company.

There were manufactured in this country last year fity-five hundred millions of doilars' worth of goods. If the tariff on dutable goods is 60 per cent, it is as f ir to presume, taking the protected and unprotected industries together, that at least one-third of that sum is paid in lieu of duties to the manufacturers at home upon the American product. It is said all this is done for the upbuilding and maintenance of manufacturers. "How long, O Lord, how long, shall this building and maintenance go on?" [A voice—"For all time." Applause.]

"Then it will not stop with eternity." [Applause.]

Governor Campbell continued in this manner his analysis of making a tariff, and then read from a certificate of the republican secretary of the Ohio state board of equalization, showing that in ten years the appraised value of farm lands has depreciated $98,000,000, and asked, "have other classes suffered alike?"

McKinley Speaks. Colonel Howe, republican chairman of th meeting, introduced McKinley as an "ideal American; one known not only at home, but abroad." [Applause.]

It gives me pleasure, said McKinley, after the ovation which greeted his appearance had subsided, to greet this audience, and ipleasure to speak from the same platform and to the same audience that Governor Campbell, that we may present the cause that we respectively represent. The issue between us and between the parties for which, for the moment, we stand, are fixed not by ourselves, but by the platforms of our respective parties. There is one or two of them which I propose to present. One of them which I propose to present to the other question of staxtion. One relates to the standard with which we shall measure our exchanges with each other and the rest of the prid, and the other relates to the methods of tax. abroad." [Applause.]

Upon this question of silver the democratic platform has declared for the free and unlimited coinage of silver of the world, as freely as gold is now coined and upon the ratios now fixed. The republican party stands opposed to that, insisting that it can't be safely done until the great commercial nations shall have fixed the ratio between gold and silver. The republican party stands for a dollar's worth, 100 cents, whether it be gold or silver, or paper, and approves of the legislation of the last congress, which requires the government to buy 4,500,000 conces of silver every month at its market value. That is a little more than the entire silver product of the United States, and for every dollar's worth of silver thus purchased the government issues its treasury note, which shall be legal tender for all debts, public and private, and redeemable in coin at the will of the holder. The treasury note thus issued has behind it a dollar's worth of silver purchased at the market value. The difference between the commercial value of the silver in a dollar and the coin value of a silver dollar went under the silver legislation of 1875 to the treasury. The cost of silver in the silver dollar averaged to the government putting its stamp on it and making it legal tender for 100 cents; and the difference between what the government paid for silver and the face value of the silver dollar amounted in tweive years to $67,000,000, which went to the benefit of 68,000,000 of people. The free and unlimited coinage would give that profit to the silver producers of the world.

Coming to the tariff question, Mr. McKinley said:

Coming to the tariff question, Mr. McKinley

The governor's platform commits him to the tariff for revenue only, that is a tariff upon foreign products, levied with no other object in view, but revenue, unmindful of every other consieration, but revenue, not caring for the industries and occupations of the recupie object in view, but revenue, unmindful of every other consieration, but revenue, not caring for the industries and occupations of the people.

A revenue tariff will do nothing else. A protective tariff, will do nothing else. A protective tariff will do nothing else. A protective tariff, besides raising revenue will also stimulate the industries of the people; encourage the skiil and genius of American citizens; develop resources for the government, and secures to it, as it is done in the past thirty years the first rank in mining, agriculture and manufacturing. Tell me why a foreign producer should be permitted to enjoy this market equally with an American citizens? Why he should have the same privilege to enter this market with his competing products as the American citizen enjoys? The foreign producers contribute not one dollar to our state, county or municipal improvement, or expenses. He is beyond our jurisdiction. You can't reach him. You can't compel him to pay one cent tax. You have built this country; you have maintained your state institutions of every character, and you have done it by taxing yourselves. The foreign producer owes no allegiance to our flag. Why should he upon any consideration, justice of fair play, be permitted to share this market with the American people with his competing products, without condition or restraint? The only way we can reach him is when he brings his products to our shores. Mr. McKinley then analyzed his tariff bill from his own standpoint, and in reply to one of Governor Champbell's points, said:

The governor complains that in this iniquitous law of 1890 we have a rebate of 99 per cent on imported raw material made into the finished for the export trade. He recommended it as in the intensity of the provision made against which dwent are provision made against which did not be proven or own when his work have not presided, presented a report which was written by that able democrat, Abraham S. Hewitt, of New York, and recommended that a rebate of 99 per cent be given its just rewards.

At the conclusion of Major McKinley's speech, the adherents of the great exponent of his tariff burst into cheers and prolonged ap-pause. Hats and parasois were waved in the air, and the band began to play.

piause. Hatsand parasols were waved in the air, and the band began to play.

Governor Campbell Again.

It was some moments before Governor Campbell could obtain order, and not until Mckinley had signaled to his friends to subdue their enthusiasm.

Ladies and gentlemen, said Governor Campbell, il concur most neartify with Major McKinley that this is the greatest and best and proude-t nation on earth. But, unlike him, I would distribute that greatness and that wealth as God distributes the dews of heaven upon the unjust as well as the just. (Prolonged applause and cheers.) I depicted the condition of the farmer and the answer of the major is not only that I am a calamity crooker, but, in the words of somebody else, you must not grumble. [Laughter.] You Findlay gas workers who have had your meagor wages reduced; you steel workers of Cleveland, who have had your pittance further cut down, you must not grumble because your poverty adds to some other man's wealth. [Cheers.]

[A voice, "Give it to nim."]

I will take care of him now if you will just let me alone. [Laughter.] This is a good-natured fight, for we are both good men. However, as only one of us can be governor, and I am there already—why, perhaps I had better stay. (Great laughter.) The major has not pointed but one wage-worker as I requested him in all this broad land who has had his wares raised on account of the McKinley bill. [Appleuse.] The republican song this year is "With sugar and tin."

"With sugar and tin We are sure to win." [Laughter.] They take the tariff off of sugar to make it cheap and they put the tariff on tin to make it cheap—[great laughter]—but what acrobat was ever yet able to ride two horses going in different directions without falling to the ground. [Renewed laughter]

I will ask whether sugar was not reduced by Mills and whether in the ways and means com-

In will ask whether sugar was not reduced by Mills and whether in the ways and means committee, when the question was up for discussion, he did not oppose any reduction in sugar.

"I want to say in answer to the courteous query of Governor Campbell," said Mr. McKinley, "that the Mills bill did reduce tariff on sugar—["Good! Good!"]—about 18 or 20 per cent. In the ways and means committee room of the house of representatives of the last congress that revised the tariff. I was in favor of reducing the tariff on sugar, raw and refined, 50 per cent. thinking we might need revenue, and giving no bounty to the sugar producers. That was my position." (Appliause.]

"I just wanted to know," resumed Governor Campbell, "whether the people owed all that free sugar to the major or not, and I have found they do not. (Laughter.] We are paying about sixteen millions du, yupon tin," said Governor Campbell, "an increase of one milition under the McKinley bill. Finally they claimed to establish an industry in Piqua. There is a man in this audience who was toid by the proprietor of the Piqua Iron works that he had "pent $100 establishing that industry—igreat laughter.]—The $100 establishing that industry—igreat laughter.]—The $100 was spent establishing industry in the purchase of stamps to make a badge inscribed "Made out of steel and Cal. fornia tin." (Laughter.]—"How about the 80-cent dollar?" cried some one from the audience.

"Major McKinley in congress," replied the governor, "said that the republican party had done all the financial legislation in this country for thirty years. If there is any 80-cent dollar."

The governor now devoted some time to returing the republican claims that tin was being manufactured in the United States, and insisted that a few samples were merely being manufactured for campaign purposes.

Again cries of "Silver, silver," broke out from the sudience and the din became almost inconceivable.

"The only trouble I and my friends have about money in this country," said the gov-rnor, "is not as to the

who will pay you that. [Great laughter and applause.]

"John Sherman says the effect of protection in all the industries has been to greatly reduce the price. So the price of your wood is to be reduced by the tariff. [Laughter.] The major wants to know if I would put a tariff on tea and coffee? My answer is, that under the democratic tariff, Irom 1846 to 1851, tea and coffee were free [applause], and when the republicans put them on the free lists they only made that one step in the direction of good old democratic policy. [Prolonged applause and cheers.]

As the conclusion of the joint debate the two speakers were taken in a carriage, and under the escort of the various marching clubs were driven through the city, while canton boomed and the bands played in triumph.

A Dwindling Cotton Grop.

SANDERSVILLE, Ga., October 8.—[Special.]—The latest estimate is that the cotton crop of this county will be one-fourth less than it was last year. The crop last year amounted to about thirty-six thousand bales, and this year, according to the estimates, it will be about twenty-seven thousand bales. Last year's crop, however, was larger than usual. This year's crop is about 15 per cent below the systage.

QUAY'S ADMISSION

That the Republican Campaign in Pennsylvania Is in Bad Shape.

A CONSULTATION OVER THE SITUATION

The Outcome of Which Is Gloom and Political Despair.

THE WAR ON GOVERNOR CAMPBELL

Demand for Satisfaction.

WASHINGTON, October 8 .- [Special.]-The dent today had a conference with Senator Quay and Postmaster General Wanamaker, and Collector Cooper, of Philadelphia, with reference to the situation in Pennsylvania, and the effect the scandalous exposures of offiial crookedness in Philadelphia would have election this fall. They were all pretty adly discouraged at the prospect, and Sens Quay, when asked about the situation by an intimate friend, replied that things were in ver bad shape. He said it in such a way as to leave the impression that the "things" referred to would go in November to that popular resort where winter underwear is entirely unnecessary.

Governor Campbell's Stand.
Governor Campbell's bold stand against the republican newspapers which are printing malic ous stories about his financia: condition igned to break down his credit and personal graty, has been a theme of discussion in al circ es here today. All eyes are cer d on Ohio, and the outcome of the bom's red by the conspirators is watched with abording interest. The fact that The Circle nati Commercial Gazette printed it, is suffinot see beyound the length of their noses hout the use of a telescope, wary it. Since the experience of the nmercial Gazette with the bellot-box forgery plot, two years ago, that paper is con sidered a veritable hoodoo. Among sensible, far seeing republican politicians, the attack on 'lovernor Campbell's credit is considered egr gious blunder, which must necessarily act, and not a few telegrams have been sent McKinley's managers today, advising them call off their dogs. Governor Foster and r prominent Ohio republicans, it is underood, condemn the campaign tactics in-gurated by the Commercial Gazette, and a ely do not hesitate to say that ot unlikely to result in McKinley's overggeration to campaign uses, will only ate sympathy, and its effect, from the standnt of purely practical politics, cannot help "If Campbell's indebtedness becomes the " said a republican politician this eveng, "McKinley might as well hang his harp he willows and go down by Euphrates to p. This explanation is eagerly pounced upon by some who have been in the habit of using Mr. McLean as a scarecrow for years, but it probably has little foundation in fact. While the conservative republicans he condemn these attacks on Governor Campbell, there are a lot of Ohio republican whipper snappers who have been standing around the hotel lobbies here two weeks chattering like magpies about Governor Campbell's debts. They make mountains out of warts, and their gossiping tongues have undoubtedly furnished the inspiration for many of the absurd stories that have floated back to Ohio. The comlaint was: The train was almost invariably phour or two late, and the fault was with e "Air-Line" road, as the Atlanta and lest Point railroad and Western of Alabama ake excellent time, but are delayed by the Air-Line" in Atlanta. The delay does cause uch inconvenience, while the northern mails build be received several hours sooner if the ain was on time. The postmaster is not expected to remain up till 9 or 10 o'clock at night and open it. The result is, this mail is not received until next day. We are also informed that the postmaster at Auburn—a very important station, the location of the Agricultural and Mechanicai college—would remain at the office and open the mail every night if the train was on time. Another great inconvenience resulting from the delay and a cause of complaint is numbers of people from Notasulga, Locohapoka, Auburn and the surrounding country visit Opelika on the morning train and have to wait at the depot several hours for the train, and get home near miduight. Something certainly ought to be done to make better time.

The Postal Telegraph Company has purchased the Merchant telegraph, which extends from Opelika to LaFayette and Roanoke, and will extend it to Anniston and other points. Work has commenced and posts are being put up.

THE IRISH LEADERS.

Continued From First Page Second Column. all-absorbing political questions is the sudden death at Walsingham Terrace, Brighton, on Tuesday night of the great Irish leader, Charles Stewart Parnell. Newspapers of the British isles are full of the story of his death, and of personal reminiscences of the "Irish Rienzi," as The Dublin Mail terms him, and contain many interviews in regard to the future possibilities of the Irish party. Even continents bilities of the Irish party. Even continental newspapers, slow to understand or take hold of any subject of peculiarly domestic interest in Great Britain, pay considerable attention to the death of the Irish leader.

Dr. James E. Kenney, member of parliament for South Cork, and treasurer of the National league, in an interview published today, says that a month ago he was suddenly summoned to attend Mr. Parnell, who appeared to be suffering from debility. Dr. Kenney, upon that occasion, advised Mr. Parnell to place some restraint upon his appearances in public, particularly when such appearances necessitated taking part in political debates, or making campaign speeches.

A family council will be held today at Walsingham Terrace, and necessary arrangements for the funeral will be made. After consultation with a committee of Irish members of parliament who have been deputed to take part in such preparations, it has been decided to hold a postmortem examination of the body of Parnell, with the view of settling definitely the cause of death.

John Dillon, moguser of parliament for East Mayo, and William O'Brien, member of parliament to East Cork, who are both in Iroland, were seen yesterday and asked for an expression of views for publication in regard to the death of Farnell. Both gentlemen referred to distinctly refused to say anything upon the subject. Timothy Healy, probably a member of parliament for North Longford, and probably Parnell's most bitter opponent, was asked today for an expression of opinion upon the political situation. He declined to say anything regarding politics, remarking: "As Harrington has decimed to make a statement concerning the intention of his party, we, for our part, are determined to maintain a truce for the present."

Arrangements for the Funeral.

It has now been decided that the funeral ceremonies of Parnell will be held at the cemetery in Glasnevan village, about three and a half miles north of Dubtin, on Sunday next. The body will arrive in Dublin on Sunday morning, and will be taken in state to the city hall, and from there the funeral will proceed. Extensive preparations have already been commenced in view of the monster demonstration which is sure to follow.

Redmend and Mahoney are in charge of the details of the funeral. The body will be placed in a leaden coffin. The medical authorities have decided to forego the proposed postmortem. Dr. Cowers and two other physicians carefully examined the body before it was deposited in the coffin, and they agreed that there was no necessity for an examination. The remains have undergone a rapid change—so rapid indeed that it has been found advisable to close the shell. There will found advisable to close the shell. There will be no religious esreunony here. The body will be conveyed to London Saturday, arriving there in time to catch the Irish night mail firm received one thousand four hundred dollars' worth of pearl buttons from Austria and the duty on these buttons was just $3,000, or a trife over 200 per cent. Who paid that duty? [Laughter.] Did the foreign manufacturer pay nearly two thousand dollars for the privilege of sending pearl buttons to us? [Laughter and applause.]

The McKinley bil provides that 99 per cent of the duties on home articles shall be refunded, provided these articles are exported. Last year the Standard Oil Company imported in to this country upon which they paid more than a million and a quarter tax or duty. If they did not; if the foreigher instead paid that duty, then the United States put its hand in our pockets and presented the Standard Oil. Company with a million and a quarter of our money, for this amount was refunded to the Standard Oil Company.

There were manufactured in this country last year fifty-five hundred millions of dollars' worth of goods. If the tariff on dutiable goods is 60 per cent, it is as f ir to presume, taking the protected and unprotected industries together, that at least one-third of that sum is paid in lieu of duties to the manufacturers at home upon the American product. It is said all this is done for the upbuilding and maintenance go on?" [A voice—"For all time." Applause.]

"Then it will not stop with eternity." [Applause.]

Governor Campbell continued in this manner his analysis of making a tariff, and then read from a certificate of the republican secretary of the Ohio state board of equalization, showing that in ten years the appraised value of farm lands has dep-ceiated $58,000,000, and asked, "have other classes suffered alike?" Continued From First Page Sixth Column.

McKinley Speaks. Colonel Howe, republican chairman of the meeting, introduced McKinley as an "ideal American; one known not only at home, but

abroad." [Applause.]
It gives me pleasure, said McKiniey, after the ovation which greated his appearance had subsided, to great this audience, and ipleasure to speak from the same platform and to the same sudience that Governor Campbell, that we may present the cause that we respectively represent. The issue between us and between the parties for which, for the moment, we stand, are fixed not by ourselves, but by the platforms of our respective parties. There is one or two of them which I propose to present. One of them is the question of silver, and the other question of taxation. One relates to the standard with which we shall measure our exchanges with each other and the rest of the world, and the other relates to the methods of tax. abroad." [Applause.]

ation by which we shall raise revenues for public purposes.

Upon this question of silver the democratic platform has declared for the free and unlimited coinage of silver of the world, as freely as gold is now coined and upon the ratios now fixed. The republican party stands opposed to that, insisting that it can't be safely done until the great commercial nations shall have fixed the ratio between gold and silver. The republican party stands for a dollar's worth, 100 cents, whether it be gold or silver, or paper, and approves of the legislation of the last congress, which requires the government to buy 4,500,000 conces of silver every month at its market value. That is a little more than the entire silver product of the United States, and for every dollar's worth of silver thus purchased the government issues its treasury note, which shall be legal tender for all debts, public and private, and redeemable in coin at the will of the holder. The treasury note thus issued has behind it a dollar's worth of silver purchased at the market value. The difference between the commercial value of the silver in a dollar and the coin value of a silver follar went under the silver legislation of 187s to the treasury. The cost of silver in the silver dollar averaged to the government plutting its stamp on it and making it legal tender for 100 cents; and the difference between what the government paid for silver and the face value of the silver dollar amounted in twelve years to $67,000,000, which went to the benefit of 68,000,000 of people. The free and unlimited coinage would give that profit to the silver producers of the people.

A revenue tariff will raise revenue for the government; a protective tariff will do that. A revenue tariff will do nothing else. A protective tariff, besides raising revenue will also stimulate the industries of the people; encourage the skill and genius of American citizens; develop recourage the start of the green people. and genius of Americ.n citizens; develop resources for the government, and secures to it, as it is some in the past thirty years the first rank in mining, agriculture and manufacturing. Tell me why a foreign producer should be permitted to enjoy this market equally with an American citizens? Why he should have the same privilege to enter this market with his competing products as the American citizen enjoys? The foreign poducers contribute not one dollar to our state, county or municipal improvement, or expenses. He is beyond our jurisdiction. You can't reach him. You can't compel him to pay one cent tax. You have built this country; you have maintained your state institutions of every character, and you have done it by taxing yourselves. The loreign producer owes no allegiance to our flag. Why should he upon any consideration, justice or fair piay, be permitted to share this market with the American people with his competing products, without condition or constraint? The only way we can reach him is when he brings his products to our shores.

Mr. McKinley then analyzed his tariff bill from his own standpoint, and in reply to one of Governor Unimpbell's points, said:

The governor compiains that in this iniquitous law of 1880 we have a rebate of 99 per cent on linported raw material made into the finished product when entered for trade. The rebate principle has been in every tariff law since the second administration of George Washington. It was in the Mills bill, which the governor voted for.

Let me remind the governor white on the subject of rebate, the committee on ways and means, over which was written by that able democrat, Abraham S. Hewitt, of New York, and recommended that a rebate of 99 per cent be given on imported raw material entered after finished for the export trade. He recommended it as in the interest of labor, stating that it furnished just so much labor to America which would be employed abroad, and the very proposition he suggested, and which every democratic member of the ways and means committee voted for, is in the new tariff law, gand is gifte provision made against which Governor Campbell clamors so loudly.

Now, I want to give you some experience, for that is a better teach r than a chart. [Laughter,] Thefe is nothing in the history of our own-experience to justify a reversal of our protective system or change our protective laws. A low tariff has always increased the importation of foreign goods, multiplied our foreign obligations, produced a balance of trade against us, supplanted the domestic producer and manufacturer, uncermined domestic prosperity and robbed labor of its just rewards.

At the conclusion of Major McKinley's speech, the adherents of the great exponent of his tariff burst into cheers and proonged appauses. Hats and parasois were waved in the air, and the band began to play.

"that the Mills bill did reduce per cent. In the ways and means committee room of the house of representatives of the last congress that revised the tariff, I was in favor of reducing the tariff on sugar, raw and refined, 50 per

my position." [Applause.]

"Just wanted to know," resumed Governor Campbell, "whether the people owed all that free sugar to the major or not, and I have found they do not. [Laughter.] We are paying about sixteen millions du. yupon tin," said Governor Campbell,
"an increase of one million under

The governor now devoted some time to refuting the republican claims that tin was being manufactured in the United States, and insisted that a

"The only trouble I and my friends have about money in this country," said the gov-rnor, "is not as to the kind of dollars we get, but as to the distribution of these dollars among the people. ["Right Right!" and democratic applause.]

"John Sherman says the effect of protection in all the industries has been to greatly reduce the price. So the price of your wool is to be reduced by the tariff. [Laughter.] The major wants, to know if I would put a tariff on tea and coffee? My answer is, that under the democratic tariff, from 1846 to 1851, tea and coffee were free [applause], and when the republicans put them on the free lists they only made that one step in the direction of good old democratic policy." [Prolonged applause and cheers.]

As the conclusion of the joint debate the two speakers were taken in a carriage, and under the escort of the various marching clubs were driven through the city, while cannon boomed and the bands played in triumph.

Sandersville, Ga., October 8.—[Special.]—The latest estimate is that the cotton crop of this county will be one-fourth less than it was last year. The crop last year amounted to about thirty-six thousand bales, and this year, according to the estimates, it will be about twenty-seven thousand bales. The Senate Substitute.

In yesterday's Constitution, the printers headed our report of the senate substitute for the Smith bill "A Suitable Bill," though the remarks that followed must have shown that the heading was a typographical error. It should have read. "A Substitute Bill."

The measure does not strike us as suitable one at all. It is in some sort a modification of the Smith substitute for the Berner bill, but the modifications are not such as to commend it to those who desire to see state control of the railroads carried out in a rational and orderly way. The substitute prosenate is no less an invitation to useless and damaging litigation than the bill on which it is based. In fact, this feature is so prominent in all the measures that have been seriously considered that a casual observer may well inquire how it is that the legislature seems to insist on a plan which is opposed to the whole railroad policy of the state.

We presume that every intelligent person knows what that policy is. The state, having decided that the railroads were subject to control in all matters affecting the rights and interests of the public, lodged its sovereignty, so far as the corporations are concerned, in the hands of a board of commission, which was duly estalished under the constitution of 1877. When the matter was up for discussion, there was a great deal of talk about leaving the whole matter in the hands of the legislature. It was soon seen, however, that the roads could not be operated under a set of rigid and castiron rules, to hold good from session to

It was seen, too, that the conflicts arising between the people and the corporations could not be settled in the courts except by expensive and damaging litigation. The question was, how should state control be exercised in order to be made effective? The legislature, after deliberately considering the question in all its bearings, concluded to commit its power in this matter to a board of commission. The railway commission was thereupon established, and the law under which it operates has been found to fit the situation so well that it has not only solved the problem of state control, but has served as a model for a number of other states.

Wherein has the commission failed in the purpose for which it was established? This is a question which we should be glad to see the senate consider and discuss. Let its powers be amplified, if they are not large enough; make them plenary, if necessary; but do not make it the nidus of useless and expensive litigation. The commission represents the power of the legislature—the sovereignty of the state. Let its functions be as large as its dignity. It was established to prevent state control of the railroads from taking the shape of a scramble in the courts; one of its purposes is to prevent litigation which is so damaging and unnecessary.

Let the senate, always considered the conservator of state legislation, regard the matter from this point of view.

Concerning Laws and Customs. Laws and customs, to be worth anything, must be the natural outgrowth of the wants and necessities of a community.

As Chief Justice Bleckley expressed it in his admirable address before the Atlanta Law school, laws must grow; they cannot, in the best sense, be said to be made.

When a horde of carpet-baggers in South Carolina, after the war, swept away the system of laws in that state, and proceeded at one fell swoop to substitute the code of New York, the result was unsatisfactory, confused and mischievous. The natives no sooner regained control of affairs than they re-established in the main their old system. Louisiana had a somewhat similar experience.

In a smaller degree may be seen, from time to time, illustrations of the mistaken policy forced upon these two states by aliens during their brief career of misrule. It is a common thing in these days of progressive experiments to see a city or a town borrow bodily the charter provisions or ordinances of another community, and attempt to enforce them vigorously. In too many instances these innovations do not work well. When an easy-going western or southern town adopts the blue laws of a New England city, men kick against the strange system, and never rest satisfied under it. Just as great a mistake is the effort sometimes made by a small city or town to fit itself to the laws and customs of a great city of a million or more inhabitants. Especially in police matters is this mistake most frequently made. When a policeman in New York tells a man standing on the sidewalk to move on, the reason is obvious, and there is no protest or resistance. But try it in a small place, where there is plenty of room, and no crowd, and the citizen thus treated will not be disposed to obey. He will have the sympathy of others, and people generally will resent what they consider an arbitrary and unnecessary com-

There must be reason in all things, and a law with no reason back of it will soon fall into contempt. * Municipal lawmakers should study the conditions of their own communities, and shape their wants into laws. They waste time when they study totally dissimilar communities, and borrow their systems without reference to the home situation.

In a word, the little town of Tailholt should have laws and customs suited to it, and should not attempt to force the policy and the regulations of a big metropolis upon its liberty-loving citizens.

Campbell's Slanderers.

"The Ohio canvass this year," remarks the republican St. Louis Globe-Democrat, "is clean and dignified." Undoubtedly our contemporary spoke too quick. Its remark was made before the attack on Governor Campbell's credit appeared in the republican newspapers. The New York Recorder and The Cincinnati Commercial Gazette. This attack shows that cleanliness and dignity are confined to the democratic party in the Ohio canvass, and this fact The Globe-Democrat should make a note of, for it is a very interesting one, . We observe that the Cincinnati organ. which handled the explosive matter contained in the Wood-Foraker forgery case declares that the attack on Governor Campbell comes from a democratic source. This may be true. There are many so-called democrats in Ohio who have formed the habit of working for republican boodle; but it is to be observed that the attack on Governor Campbell's credit has only appeared in the columns of republican organs. It is not an ordinary attack. It does not touch his political record. It is personal and venomous, It is an attempt to smirch his character and break down his credit. There is not a hint of politics in it; from beginning to end it is personal and vindictive. It has less excuse than the Foraker forgery business, for that, although a lie, dealt with politics. The slander which the republican organs are now fathering is simply a malicious attempt to show that Governor Campbell is both reckless and dishonest in his business methods. We are not surprised to hear that the governor has called his republican defamers to order. He has instructed his attorneys bring suit against The New York Recorder for damages, and he has called on The Commercial Gazette to make suitable reparation. We should think that this Cincinnati organ. which has had its reputation injured by the publication of the Foraker-Wood forgery, would be careful how it picked up such a slander as that which is aimed at Governor Campbell's character and standing, but it seems to be in love with the business.

Its explanation of the publication might have been written by Murat Halstead. It says that, although it knew the charges to be in the nature of a slander, it printed them as a matter of public interest. The explanation itself is not without its venom. It may be a matter of public interest to know to what depths of infamy a republican organ will descend for political purposes, but it ought to be answerable for defama tion of character.

The attack on Governor Campbell's credit may turn out to be even more important than the republican organs supposed, but in a different way. It is so malicious and venomous that it goes beyond the purpose of its inventors, and is likely to add to the situation a good deal of business that the republicans had not counted on. In other words, the charge is so reckless and uncalled for that honest men are bound to resent it. Governor Campbell.

The Sons of Somebody.

Within the past two or three years the sons of Veterans, and quite a number of similar societies, have been organized. It is now proposed, says a Chicago, paper, to organize the Sons of Abolitionists, and there is no telling how far the new craze will go. Our Chicago contemporary suggests that an idea is abroad in the land to the effect that it takes a great deal of intelligent and well-directed effort to become the son of a great, or even a prominent, man, and it eems that the youngsters who have achieved that distinction do not propose to allow the public to remain in ignorance of the fact. Possibly we shall soon see societies of the Sons of Workingmen, composed of gilded idlers who desire to show the world that they are descended from ancestors whose energetic brains and muscles enabled them to earn their own living. It is to be hoped so. While our young men are about it, they will do a manly and a graceful thing in proclaiming that they honor their fathers, not only because some of them were noted men, but because they possessed the sturdy virtues and the indomitable enterprise which made the wilderness of this continent blossom as the

We are for that historic but badly snubbed individual, the Old Man, first, last and all time. He has done more for us than we have ever done for him, but it is to be feared that there is a disposition to snow him under, and not allow him a fair field and a fighting chance. Now is the time to reform all this. Instead of getting up societies whose members boast of their descent from a lot of old colonels, or a crowd of fanatics, let us take a step in the right direction, and in a similar way honor the pioneers and honest tollers whose axes, plows and hammers have made us the heirs of all the ages. While we are organizing these societies, let us honor the plowshare as well as the sword!

Sending Our Lepers to Canada. The Canadian authorities are very angry with Dr. Edson, of New York, because he picks up the Chinese lepers as rapidly as possible and dumps them upon Canada.

After the lepers are sent to Canada, the close watch kept on the American side prevents them from returning.

It is admitted that we cannot send our lepers away by the steamship lines, because their rules bar out all contagious diseases. and leprosy is held by many to be such a disease. New York cannot ship her lepers south or west-the country would not stand it. She can hardly keep them where they are, because the citizens might get up a riot and massacre them.

What is to be done? Of course it is not the right thing to smuggle these dangerous pests ovor the border of a friendly country, and not allow them to be sent back. There can be doubt about that. But again the question comes up, What can be done about it? Why not have a government vessel set apart to receive these unfortunates and make periodical trips with them to a distant island, where they can be provided for without endangering other people? Humanity and prudence would seem to suggest such a course.

Two Important Measures.

The house yesterday passed two very important bills, and it is to be hoped that the senate will push them to a successful conclusion before adjournment.

They are the bills introduced by that ex perienced and valuable legislator, Mr. Wheeler, of Walker, who has been a member of the legislature long enough to take practical advantage of the experience gained his long term of service.

Mr. Wheeler's two bills seek to amend the constitution by providing for—

1. Annual sessions of the legislature;

2. A limitation of fifty days on each annual session, which limitation shall not be extended under any other circumstance than a pending impeachment trial, or by the governor's call for an extra session.

The constitution now provides for biennial sessions of the legislature, and limits the time of each session to forty days, which is rendered absolutely nugatory by a provision allowing the time to be extended and a recess to be taken by a two-thirds vote.

Let us see how it has worked .- The legislative session of 1884-5 consumed 146 days. It required 157 days to get through with the legislature of 1886-7. That of 1888-9 took 176 days. If the present legislature adjourns on the 15th of this month, as agreed upon, t will have been in session 146 days.

Of course it is a matter of impossibility for the legislature to finish its business within the forty days, fixed by the constitutional limitation, but the authority given it to extend its sessions, "if rendered necessary by the public business," has resulted in extensions unnecessarily long.

A bill has already passed this general assembly which will have the effect of removing from the legislature the consideration of many local bills and bulky charters. which amendment will, no doubt, be ratified by the people at the next election.

There will be no trouble in disposing of the public business in a session of fifty days every year, and if the two bills passed yesterday by the house are likewise as fortunate in the senate, the result will be an annual saving to the state of about fifty thousand dollars.

It is to be hoped that the senate will pass these bills at once, for the house has not sent to the upper body two more meritorious measures.

Bogus Widows.

The newspapers recently have given the story of several cases in which bogus widows mysteriously made their appearance, and claimed the estates of wealthy middle-aged men, who had lived and died leaving the world under the impression that they were single.

A few days ago a beautiful stranger visited the grave of the late Augusta, Maine, millionaire, E. C. Allen, and gave every evidence of deep grief. At first she claimed to be a relative, but later admitted that she was the widow of the dead man who married her in Paris several years ago.

The relatives of Allen are wondering what will be the outcome. They have not lecided whether to oppose the stranger or yield to her claims. The fact is, the bogus widow imposture is easy, when two or three persons of fair reputation conspire together to push it through. The alleged Mrs. Allen would find it an easy matter to get a shady preacher in Paris, and two or three other persons, to make oath that she was married. The loss of the marriage certificate could be accounted for.

In some states and countries no marriage ceremony would be required. Under their laws, if Allen introduced this lady as his wife, and lived with her for a time she would be legally his widow. Now, when a million is the prize is view it would not be hard to find witnesses to such a marriage.

Perhaps the lady at Augusta may be enuine widow. She is said to be | beautiful and refined, and impresses people favorably. It is to be hoped that she is not an imposter. But the bogus widow business is real danger, and a dead man's millions make a bright and shining temptation.

"In my opinion there is no doubt about that. Of course the judge will set aside that verdict. I will say of a certainty, the end of Glover's trial is not yet. Though public opinion is prejudiced against him, still I believe he will be a tree man before the end of another six months."

"What was the state case?"

"The state got a conviction on the chloroform and morphine thereof. One witness swore that at least a half goblet of chloroform was administered to Glover's wife in a short wille, by pouring it on a handkerchief and placing it over her nose, it being folded so as to admit air. One hour after he quit administering the chloroform she died. But that theory is perfectly absurd and contrary to all reason. For she died in convulsions, the brain was dry, the brain was congested in the lower part and the condition of the eyes all showed that it was impossible for her to have died by an overdose of morphine and chloroform.

"The evidence showed that she had congestive

LAID TO HIS REST

In the Shadow of the Church He Once Served

WILL BE THE BODY OF DR. BENEDICT.

The Funeral at St. James Church-The Sad Incident in Connection with His Daughter's Marriage.

The funeral of Rev. Samuel Benedict, who net such an untimely death in Cincinnati, Tuesday, will occur at Marietta today. For ten years he was rector of St. James church in that little city, and there they brought him to perform the sad funeral rites

The train bearing the body arrived at Marietta at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The body was accompanied by the wife of the deceased, Rev. George Benedict; Rev. Ernest Benedict; Rev. Cleveland Benedict; Miss Julia Benedict; Mr. Hepburn, of Cincinnati; Mrs. Williams, a married daughter of the deceased, living in Ohio, and Dr. S. C. Bene-

Dr. Tinsley, of Cininnati, as the representative of the bishop of southern Ohio, who could not come, because of previous appointments; Rev. Dr. Pise, of cinnati; Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Dykens, of Cincinnati; Mr. Barbour and others, members and vestrymen of St. Paul's church, Cin-

They were met at the train by many Ma rietta people, friends of Dr. Benedict, his old parishioners, and by Mr. John A. Benedict nd Mr. Robert Zahner, of Atlanta.

The body was carried to 1St. James church there it will rest until 10 o'clock today. At that time the funeral will take place. After the funeral services the remains will be laid to rest in the Episcopal cemetery, where he has performed the last sad rites of so nany others who have gone before him to the He was much beloved in Marietta, and his sad death caused much sorrow in that city. He was rector of St. church, Marietta, from 1858 to 1868. Leaving there he went to Savanuah as ctor of St. John's Episcopal church, of that city. He served that church from 1868 to 1876, hen he accepted a call from St. Paul's church, of Cincinnati, which church he was erving at the time of his death.

For years he was a member of the standing ommittee of the diocese of Georgia, and after wards of the diocese of Ohio.

At the time of his death he was sixty-sever vears of age, and was in robust health. He ntended to go to South France on November 1st for a month's vacation. He was a profound scholar, an eloquent divine, and an able pastor.

There is a peculiar pathos connected with ing out of the fact that his youngest daughter, Miss Julia, was to have een married October 20th.

The marriage will occur tomorrow in St. James church, and will be conducted in a very quiet manner. The groom is Mr. Hepburn, of Cincinnati.

They will go from thence to Savannah and from Savannah, by steamer, to New York. The funeral services today will be conducted by Rev. C. T. A. Pise, rector of St. James church; Rev. Drs. Tinsley and Pise, of Cincinnati, and Rev. H. K. Rees, of Georgia. The vestrymen of the church will act as pallbearers HE IS TROUBLED.

Alexander Grotte in More Than One Predicament at Present.

Alexander Grotte, who is now in Fulton county jail awaiting trial for larceny after trust, is sorely perplexed.

His family affairs are bothering him by far more than any trouble he may be in because of his recent well-known transaction.

The story of the cause sounds peculiar in the face of American laws.

Grotte's home was formerly at Mitau, in south Russia. During his boyhood days he received his education in Germany, and then returned to Russia to complete his career as a face of American laws.

In his family the orthodox laws of the Hebrews had always been observed, and in ac-cordance with them Grotte was reared. He remained in Russia until about ten years ago, and then set sail for England, with the best wishes of his parents, brothers and sisters. He arrived at London, and there learned the art of cutting. He worked at this for some time, and in the middle of the eighties set sail for America.

Grotte worked at his trade in various places, and finally landed in Cumberland, Md. He became acquainted there with a Miss Anna Miller, a school teacher of Virginia, and the friendship ripened. One was a Presbyterian, the other a Jew, but the marriage day was account.

In the meanwhile Grotte's father had died, leaving some valuable property. The mother, with devoutest loyalty to her faith, heard of her son's step with sorrow. She meant to avoid it if she could, and with that end in with that end in view sent her oldest son to this country.

He arrived in Cumberland a few days previous to the time arranged for the wedding ceremony. The young man argued and pleaded with his brother to remain true to the teachings of the Jewish rabbis and not to forsake the orthodox creed by marrying a non-Jew. The entreaty was without avail Jew. The entreaty was without avail.

The young man then set about to use what-The young man then set about to use what-ever means he could to prevent the step, which he considered wrong. Finally he ac-cused his brother, Alexander, of some crime and attempted to have him arrested, in order to have him imprisoned when the marriage day was set.

day was set.

This, too, was unsuccessful. Grotte and Miss Miller were wedded, made one by a Presbyterian minister, who, by special request, dispensed with as much ceremony as was pos-

This was a severe blow to the family. The mother wrote that her son, of whom so much had been expected, had disgraced them all, and for nine months she said the well-known and for nine months she said the well-known Jewish prayer, recited in memory of the dead. Grotte disliked all of this. He continued to write letters home, but no answers were received. A response soon came that his missives had all been thrown unread into the fire, and he should discontinue them. A little son came to brighten his household, and on the occasion he forwarded an affectionate letter to his mother, with a handsome present, coming, as he said, from the boy. These were treated as their predecessors.

When Grotte came to Atlanta, about a year and a half ago, he ceased to write to his old home in Mitau. Nothing more was heard from the angry and grieved family.

Several weeks ago he fell into the trouble which landed him behind prison bars. He wrote to his mother, explained his circumstances and asked her to send him $200.

A reply came. It stated that if Grotte would reneunce all disallegiance to the faith of his fathers, and come back to his aging mother to spend with her the remainder of her days, she would give him 13,000 rubles, a stone mill and the estate on which she lived, amounting to a would give him 13,000 rubles, a stone mill and the estate on which she lived, amounting to a sum in the neighborhood of from twelve to twenty thousand dollars.

The Jewish law in regard to inheritance is that no will is made by the father, the mother disposing of the property as she wishes, and at his death this privilege falls to the eldest son. Grotte is aware of this, and hence does not know what to do. Properly, he would now have about six thousand dollars as his share of the estate left by his father; his mother offers him, provisionally, more than double.

the estate left by his lather; his mother calls him, provisionally, more than double.

But the old, old custom prevails, and that is the stumbling block, for Grotte laughs at the idea of deserting his wife and child, and says he will listen to no suggestion bearing upon it.

"Couldn't the Russian laws compel your country of the state?" mother to give you a just share of the estate?'

"No," he said, "the Jewish laws of mar-riage, divorce, inheritance and the like have their force where I came from."
"What can I do?" he asked, after a pause. He is without doubt still awaiting an an-

Now that the street railroad company is preparing to put down its tracks on Marietta street between Broad and Decatur, wouldn't it be well to settle the matter of the location of the handsome fountain donated to the city by Captain W. D. Grant?

Under the terms of his gift the fountain must be located somewhere on Marietta street near Broad.

The popular belief seems to be that the proper place is at the widest part of the street, about midway between Broad and Peachtree; and doubtless that location will suit Captain Grant as well as any other.

This fountain, when completed, will be one of the most attractive additions to the city, and will certainly add much to Marietta street. The site should be determined upon for the convenience of the street railroad company.

Dr. W. S. Elkin has bought the handsome residence of Colonel B. F. Abbott, on Peachtree, and will soon make that his home. Colonel Abbott expects to build a new home or far-out Peachtree.

Today the railroad committee of the house will consider a matter of great interest to street railroad men.

The house some days ago passed a bill re quiring railroads to furnish separate but equal accommodations for white people and for negroes. To this the senate added an amendment including electric and street car lines. The but yesterday reconsidered that action, and recommitted the bill to the railroad committee Today the committee will consider the bill, 4 o'clock this afternoon being fixed as the time. Street railroad men argue that such an arrangement is impractical for street cars, and a great many people agree with them. To-morrow, under the instructions of the house, the bill is to be reported back.

The fact is, Manchester is something.

WASN'T A BLUFF.

A Man from the Country Claims to Hav Been Caught.

A man from the country walked into polic headquarters yesterday and told Captain Couch the story of some of his city experiences. He said that he was standing down at the auction house on the corner of Loyd and Decatur street, looking on. One of the proprietors, the man alleges, called him to one side and told him that he was going to put up a fine watch and that he did not want it to go too leap, and if the countryman would run up the watch to $16 he would get 50 cents for the service and the protection of the interest

This, so says the countryman, was agreed upon, and the watch was put up, and after a stereotyped history of the watch, its manufacture and the material used in its composition, it was offered to the highest bidder. The countryman bid in turn with other would-be purchasers, raising the bid steadily until it reached $16. The countryman claim that he further ran the bluff to the extent of forking over the $16, of course, with the un-derstanding that it was to be refunded. But when he called for his money the auction man told him he had no money, but was the owner of the watch and not the money.

No amount of argument could induce the auction man to return the money.

The case was reported to Captain Couch, and he sent an officer with the man, with instructions to get the money or bring the auction man to the station house.

The man states that when he demanded his money according to the agreement, that the proprietor of the auction store told him that it was a violation of the law to by-bid, and that did not take the watch and leave he would have him arrested. The case was compromised.

THEY MARRIED

Clandestinely, and Intended to Keep It

BUT THEIR FRIENDS DISCOVERED,

And Happiness Follows-Mr. Tom McConnell, Well Known in Atlanta, Mar-ries Miss Wrenns Thompson.

Tom McConnell will be well remembered in Atlanta as the young man who came here a few months ago to fight a duel with Mr. Ross, Mr. McConnell is from Carnesville, and is of splendid family. The duel, which was never lought, was about a young lady. Mr. McCon nell has effectively changed his heart's affection since the duel, as the sequel will show, but the young lady played an important part in the romance.

Mr. McConnell, it seems, had quite forgotten his old flame, and had been paying devoted attention to Miss Wrenna Thompson, of Jefferson, for some time. Miss Thompson is a young lady of rare beauty and of excellent parentage. This parentage, however, objected to the attentions of Mr. McConnell. Sunday afternoon Mr. McConnell went down to Jefferson, and, as he had often done, took Miss Thompson out for a ride.

During the ride Mr. McConnell produced a parriage license, and informed the young lady that they were going to marry that after To say that the young lady was surprised, would be to express it tamely. She was over-whelmed. She wanted to postpone the marriage until Christmas. But McConnell was firm, and it was at last arranged that the marriage would take place, but kept secret until Nothing was, of course, said about the marriage, and Mr. McConnell returned to his ome at Carnesville the following morning. It has been said that murder will out. It might be as truly said of marriage. Mr. Mc-Connell took a friend into his confidence, and Connell took a friend into his confidence, and told him of his secret wedding. This young lady at once informed Mrs. Thompson of the marriage of her daughter.

At first there was weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth. The young lady was called in and admitted the truth of the story and begged to be forgiven. It was the old, old story over again, with slight variations. The daughter was forgiven, and message was at once sent to Mr. McConnell at Carnesville to Bolossy Kiralfy, the King of the Spectacular. Will Reach Here.

FIVE HUNDAED MEN ARE WANTED.

Only a Few Days Now Before the Exposition Gates Will Open-Preparing for King Solomon.

The king of spectacle, the famous muchtalked-of Bolossy Kiralfy, is on his way to Atlanta, and will arrive on the limited this afternoon at 4 o'clock. The following telegram was received vesterday:

NEW YORK, October 8.—Mr. S. H. Cohen—Please meet me at limited, arriving tomorrow atternoon Bolossy Kiralfy.

The great dersire to see Kiralfy is due to the fact of the great talk and sensation created by bringing this tremendous spectacle to Atlanta.

Mr. Kiralfy's presentation of it at Wehaw ken was witnessed by over a million of the best people in America. No one word save in praise has been heard by the press of any who attended this great performance. Mr. Kiralfy calls the production King Solomon and the Destruction of Jerusalem, a mammoth, historical representation with its grand ballet and marches, invented, designed and produced under hisown supervision. All the characters, King David, Solomon, Ananias, Queen of Sheba and even the smaller characters, such as ambassadors, slaves, merchants warriors, soldiers, musicians, dancing girls gladiators and the people of the various tribes of the orient, are all characteristically repre-sented in his great production. Bolossy Kiralfy has given a lifetime to the study of these productions. In former years, though the senior of the Kiralfy brothers, he did the work that pushed his brother Imre to the front. The firm of Kiralfy Brothers dissolved from a dispute about Nero, or the Fall of Rome, which Imre claimed as his property and sold to the Barnum and Bailey circus after his run at Staten Island. Bolossvin his production has proven himself to be far ahead of his brother or any one else in the line of spectacle. His management of robs, and his powerful blending of colors all added greatly to his won-

Exhibits continue to come in in great shape, and the outlook is that everything will be ready for the grand opening Monday week. Exhibitors are arriving every day, and the indications are that the city will be packed from tion. Grand preparations are being made all over the country to come to Atlanta. A great many are taking advantage of the cheap rates to come three or four times during the great exposition. Grady day, military day and alliance days will be noted days during the exposition, and a large number of people will avail themselves of the double opportunity to attend the unveiling of the Grady monument and to see the great exposition.

Alliance Days.

A special programme is being arranged for alliance days, and it will be among the most interesting at the exposition. A number of novel attractions are being arranged for that ion. The following letter has been is-Sued to all of the suballiances in the state.

ATLANTA, Ga., October 6.—Mr. President Suballiance. Dear Sir: Through you we especially invite every member of your suballiance to attend the Piedmont exposition on the 3d and 4th of November. On these two days we have arranged an alliance programme which we think will be full of interest for you and the public generally. Among the speakers invited for that occasion are the Hon. L. L. Folk, of North Carolina; Dr. W. C. Macuue, of Washington, D. C.; Hon. Harry Tracy, of Texas; Hon. E. F. Stackhouse and Fresident Stokes, of South Carolina; President S. M. Adams, of Alabams, who will be present and deliver short addresses. This will give to alliance leaders of the country, as well as an opportunity of seeing the great algricultural and mechanical exhibit that will be made here this year, also, the grand aggregation of attractions that will be presented during your visit.

JAMES R. WYLLE, Fresident.

I concur in the above, and will be present both alliance days and feel satisfied I can assure all alliancemen of a pleasant and instructive day.

NEWS EXPECTED TODAY.

omething Definite About to Be Announced in the Depot Matter.

Some announcement which will really be news is looked for today in the union depot uestion. A report was circulated yesterda that the Richmond and Danville and the Geor gia Pacific are liable to draw out of the agree ment, but this was not accepted by railroad men, who believe that the East Tennessee will get in the depot yet.

The return of Mr. M. B. Marsh, who went t New York in the interest of the Atlanta and Florida, is anxiously awaited. Their negotia tions promised well at the outset, and the only thing that has handicapped them is the hostility of the legislature to railroads.

The Georgia Pacific announces a special rate of 31 cents a mile from all points to the fair at Birmingham and the exposition at Dallas, Tex. The rate will go into effect

Mr. W. M. Davidson, general passenger agent of the Savannah, Florida and Western railway, with headquarters at Jack-sonville, passed through Atlanta yesterday on his way to Cincinnati. He says that the coming winter promises to be the greatest tourst year that Florida has ever had

Mr. S. H. Hardwick, assistant general passenger agent of the Central spent yesterday in

Mr. E. S. Richardson, rate clerk of the Cen tral, has been transferred to the Richmond and Danville's general passenger agent's office.

The Western and Atlantic has put on an improved service. A "local" sleeper has been added to train No. 4, leaving Atlanta at 7:45 o'clock p. m., and a parlor car is added to train No. 5, which leaves Chattanooga at 8:20 o'clock a. m. for Atlanta.

A Coming Southern Inventor. Mr. J. W. Jenkins, of Cochran, Ga., a southerner born and raised, has recently invented and patented a device which is, it is believed, calculated to lessen these wrecks of almost daily occurrence at least 75 per cent.

His invention is called the "salety bed attachment," and is in the nature of four strong transverse brass pars, which are attached to the truck just in front of and behind each wheel. The bars are of the same elevation as run on the ordinary track and roadbed without difficulty.

These bars are securely fastened to the truck and are altogether independent of the movements of the wheels. They extend out a foot wider than the track and have at the ends heavy, deep flanges.

This apparatus, simple as it may seem, by practical test has been found a sure preventive of most of the ordinary railroad accidents. It is effective in averting wrecks from broken.

is effective in averting wrecks from broken, spread or breached rails, turned switches and burnt journals. It is designed to be applied to all kinds of rolling stock. Take the case of a broken rail. As soon as the wheels leave the track, instead of tearing over the ties and capazing, the car is caucht, on the rails by the capsizing, the car is caught on the rails by the smooth, round bars of the trucks, and slides on with ease until stopped, with no more friction than would attend a locked wheel.

Take a spread rail. The wheels go down between the rails, but the bars again slide over the rails, supporting the train while the flange at the ends of the bars prevent it sliding off sideways; or if the rails are spread much, pulls them together, or else stops the motion. In the case of a turned switch, it is the same—the train cannot leave the track. When a journal burns out, that end of the car is only lowered two inches to find a secure rest on the strong

It is claimed that in almost any way you take it, the bars insure security and permanence for the support of the train. How many thousands of lives this device will save when on the railroads-if proven all its inventor aims—is marvelous to contemplate. The inventor, after six years of labor, got his patent last July, and has just begun a tour with his model among the railroad owners and officials of America. All who have seen it pronounce the patent as practical.

Mr. Jenkins, after organizing a stock company, disposed of three-fourths of the shares to strong Georgia capitalists, who will see it put through successfully. He will retain his fourth interest, and expects to realize a big fortune on it. He is also working on another patent which is calculated to notify at three miles apart the engineers of trains approaching on the same track. Perhaps Georgia has in Mr. Jenkins an inventor whose name is to become famous for call time.

A Legal Proceeding in Which a Lawyer Outwitted a Merchant.

There was a badly mixed legal proceeding in the courts yesterday.

About three months ago Josh Brown was arrested for burglary. Yesterday morning he was sentenced to serve five years in the peni-was scheduled by the tentiary.

Previous to his arrest Brown had bought from Mr. Withiams a trunk on the instalment plan and had only made one payment on it when he was put in jail. When Brown was with a lat of stolan goods. caught the trunk, with a lot of stolen goods caught the trunk, with a lot of stolen goods, was carried to the station house and put in the storeroom for stolen goods.

Shortly after Brown was put in jail, Mr. Williams called at the jail to make some arrangements about getting pay for his trunk. As Brown had no money, he gave Williams an order for the trunk. Captain Couch knew nothing about the trunk, as it had been stored away as stolen goods, and told Williams that he would have to wait a few days and see if anybody else claimed the trunk. This satisfied Williams, as he knew the trunk was his and that it would be safe at the station.

Brown learned in some way that Williams did not get the trunk, and subsequently gave his attorney, Mr. Whitesides, an order for the trunk to hold as collateral for attorney's fees.

Yesterday morning, when Brown was sen-

Yesterday morning, when Brown was sentenced, both Attorney Whitesides and Merchant Williams presented their orders for the trunk on the chief of police.

Finding that matters were quite complicated

Finding that matters were quite complicated, both men decided to institute legal proceedings. Wiltiams sued out a bail trover against Captain Couch for the possession of the trunk. Captain Couch went to Justice Landrum's court from which the writ was issued to reply thereto. In the meantime, Attorney Whitesides, who understood the law better than Williams, went to Justice Owen's court and sued out an identical writ for the possession of the trunk that Williams had secured in Landrum's court—only Whitesides's writ was against Chief Connolly instead of Assistant Chief Couch. As Chief Connolly is the head of the department in whose possession the of the department in whose possession the trunk was, he was, of course, the proper official against whoom to proceed, and the trunk was delivered to Attorney Whitesides.

RICHMOND, Va., October 8.-[Special.]-Though decidedly one of the wettest and most disagree-able days of the fall, this has indeed been wed-ding day in Richmond. There have been a half dozen or more marriages, the earliest and most notable of which was that of Miss Marie Celeste Pizzini, daughter of Captain Anddrew Pizzini, dr., fr. to Mr. Kenneth Raynor Cobb, a member of the Norfolk commission firm of E. Lepage & Co. The ceremony was performed at St. Peter's carbedral at 10:15 o'clock this morning. The high altar was beautifully decorated with draped smilax and ferns, and hundreds of white roses, and illumin-ated by waxen tapers. The side decorations were also very handsome. The bride and groom entered the cathedral preceded by the ushers.

JIM MORRIS ARRESTED.

Charged with Sending an Obscene Note to a Lady's Room.

Jim Morris, a young white man, who is a conspicuous figure around hotels, fair grounds and other places where people congregate, is now a guest of the city prison.

The charge against Morris is that of sending the control of the control of the charge against Morris is that of sending an insulting note to a young lady's room.

The young lady is Miss Carrington, a leading member of the "Uncle Hiram" troupe, which closed an engagement at DeGive's opera house last night. Miss Carrington is spoken of in the highest terms by Mr. Hardy, the manager of the company.

Wednesday night, after the mow, the young lady members of the "Uncle Hiram" troupe went to the National hotel, where they were stopping, and the gentleman stopped in the

Jim Morris stepped into the office and asked Mr. DeNesselrode, the clerk, for a sheet of paper and a place to write a note. He was given two sheets of paper and told to go to the writing room, which is on the second floor. In a few minutes Morris descended the steps and went out the door. Just as he went out the door, Mr. Hardy, manager of the Uucle Hiram company, came downstairs with a note signed "Clerk." He walked up to Mr. De-Nesselrode and, handing him the note, demanded:

"Did you write that, sir?"
"I did not," replied the clerk.
Mr. Hardy explained that he had stepped into Miss Carrington's room for something, and was standing near the door preparatory to and was standing near the door preparatory to leaving, when he saw the note quickly shoved under the door. He picked it up and read, and without saying a word to the young lady, rushed out to find the author of the note.

As it was signed "Clerk," Mr. Hardy immediately went to Mr. DeNesselrode, the clerk on duty, to inquire about its authorship.

All the gentlemen in the office knew that the All the gentlemen in the office knew that the clerk had not written any note, and that Morris was the only man who had been writing in the house. They went up to the room where Morris did his writing, and there found one and a half sheets of paper. It was quickly seen that the two pieces had originally been one and the same sheet.

Morris, who is a married man and has a very pretty and respectable wife, soon came back into the hotel office and was arrested and placed in the city prison, charged with the authorship of the note.

Yesterday he was placed on trial and the evidence partially taken. Judge Calhoun continued the case until today for further investigation. Morris's bail was placed at $250, but he was unable to give it and is still in the prison. Mr. DeNesselrode and Mr. Hardy are both very indignant over the affair, and prison. The musicians in this organization create a most favorable sensation by appearing in their musical street promenade each day in full evening costume, thus giving them a genteel, dignified bearing, while the music discoursed is pronounced equal to anything heard at the most fashionable resorts and conservatories. As a matter of course this argues well for the effective presentation of the play, since it abounds in songs, dances and musical interpolations.

AN ATLANTA MAN

Locked Up for Fifteen Years in an Insane Asylum.

STORY OF COLONEL CHARLES G. BAYLOR.

Who Was Thrown Into an Asylum by His Wife's Connivance,

IN ORDER THAT SHE MIGHT FARE BETTER

Under the Care of Another People, to Whom Her Husband's Presence Was Distasteful.

NEW YORK, October 8 .- Another rescue, and a notable one, is to be credited to the Lunacy Law Reform League and Anti-Kid-naping Society. The released captive is Colonel Charles G. Baylor, a man with a history. He has been a prisoner in insane asylums fifteen years, but in spite of all the unspeakable tortures he has undergone, is still, at sixty-six, a remarkably fine specimen of manhood; tall and erect, white haired and white-bearded like a patriarch, with a fine, intellectual face, dignified bearing, polished seech and courtly manners. The impression he leaves upon all who are brought into contact with him is that of a cultivated gentle-man of the old school, and it is impossible, looking into his steady eyes, not to believe his calm and deliberate statement that he has never for a single moment been insane.

Colonel Baylor's Career. Colonel Baylor was born in Kentucky, and longed to a family prominent in the south before the civil war. He volunteered for the Mexican war, although a mere boy, and at its ose had earned the rank of major by his gallantry. Then he went into politics, and in 1851, when he was only twenty-six, President Filmore appointed him United States consul at Amsterdam, Holland. Under the administration of President Pierce he was consul at Manchester, England, and President Buchanan appointed him consul at Cologne, Germany. After this extended diplomatic experience he came home in 1859 and settled with his family in Atlanta, Ga. The outbreak of the civil war found him in sympathy with the union side. His honored ancestry and his enviable record in the war with Mexico, not to mention his consular services, naturally tended to make him a conspicuous figure in any community, and he was promptly prof-fered the colonelcy of a Louisiana regiment. Because of his adherence to the union he was compelled to decline the honor, and after that could not, of course, remain in the south. When peace was declared he took his family to Virginia, but was soon warned that if he valued his life, he had better leave the state, and that is why he finally made his home in Massachusetts. As he can do it better than anybody elese, from this point on we will let him tell his own story:
The Work of His Relative.

"My health was poor when I came north after the war, and because of the unsettled condition of the whole country, I could make lit-tle money for my family. We were poor, but not in abject poverty, for we always had enough of the absolute necessities of life. My wife and children were dissatisfied, however, and when my wife's relatives offered her a good home and ample provision for the edu-cation of our children if she would leave me, the offer was accepted. The proposition came through John D. Weils, of Cambridge, Mass., who is now auditor of the Massachusetts state board of lunacy, and who had married a sister

"I was neither in position nor condition to oppose the action of my wife and her relatives. My health continued to decline until 1876, when my family, through Mr. Wells, induced me to enter the McLean asylum at Somerville, Mass. I consented to do so only after Mr. Wells had assured me most positively that the yium was a private institution for the treat-

I would be perfectly free to leave at any time I pleased.
"Within a week I found that I was in an "Within a week I found that I was in an institution for incurables, similar to the Bloomingdale asylum, of New York, owned and controlled by a private corporation, and enabled, through several large bequests for the purpose from charitable men and women, to admit a certain number of free patients, of which I was one. As soon as I made this startling discovery I went to the physiciaus in charge, danguaged my incarrention as an otherge. denounced my incarceration as an outrage, and demanded immediate release. While I certainly am broken down in bodily health, I said, mentally I am vigorous and entirely sane. Not the slightest attention was paid to my representations and demands, and, although I wrote repeatedly to my family, I received not a word in reply.

His Escape from His Keepers.

"Months ran on into years and year after year passed until thirteen years of my life had been spent in that terrible place, far worse than any prison could possibly be, and in all that time I had not had a single night of undisturbed sleep on account of the noise made by the inmates. Two years ago, with the aid of Frank Sanborn, I managed to secure a transfer to the regular state asylum at Worcester, and after I had been there less than a year the doctors said that all I required to make me well and strong was rest away from the asylum. Accordingly I was given a convalescent's discharge and placed with a private family in the transfer. I was given a convalescent's discharge and placed with a private family in the town of Newtonville, where my health began to recover rapidly under the influence of the quiet and undisturbed life I led. Then the man who had ruined my home and my life again came in pursuit of me. He got the Massachusetts state board of lunacy to issue a certificate stating that the conditions under which I was living were not favorable to my recovery, and recommending my return to the asylum. Fearing that I would be taken back to the institution at Somerville, I fied to Hartford, Conn. The Massachusetts authorities followed and found Massachusetts authorities followed and found me there, and gave me the alternative of re-turning to Massachusetts or entering the Hart-ford asylum. I chose the latter, and very for-tunately, too, since shortly after my admittance to the Connecticut institution the Lunacy Re-form League heard of my case and took the necessary steps to secure my release.

Neglected by His Family.

"I have not dwelt upon the difference between Mr. Wells and myself, because to do so would be to place my wife and eight adult children be to place my wife and eight adult children before the public in an unfavorable light; and that I prefer to avoid. Whatever they may have done to me, I have no desire to injure my own flesh and blood. I am an old man now and do not expect people to take any particular interest in me as an individual. My sole object in relating my experience is to show the public and the lawmakers in a practical way how the present lunacy laws can be used as a means to destroy a man's health and deprive him of his liberty, and how they offer a premium upon domestic crime. I have written to my family in Massachusetts of my release without eliciting any response. In my old age I am utterly descreted by my kindred and left heartbroken to make my way as best I can alone."

Sam Will Have to Pay the Penalty. Sam Will Have to Pay the Penalty.

A UGUSTA, Ga., October S.—[Special.]—Sam Turner was captured in "Frogall" swamp, five miles below Augusta, last night. He is wanted for arson. Sam, in broad open daylight last Sunday, set fire and destroyed the home of a colored woman on Mrs. Easterling's plantation, five miles from Augusts, on the Savannah road. He had been living with her, but had separated. He returned Sunday, and begged the woman to take him back. Because she refused to become reconciled, he openly declared he would burn down her house, and he carried out his threat, but he will suffer for his incendiary act.

THE MISSING FRUIT VENDER.

He Had Plenty Money, But His Where abouts Are Unknown.

Montgomery, Ala., October 8.—[Special.] The mysterious disappearance of Charley Burch, the Italian fruit vender, since Saturday night, has at last aroused the attention of the police, who have been investigating the case all day. There is no cause known why Burch should leave the city. He was doing a thriving business, and had recently leased a large store, for which he made a deposit of $500 as collateral security, and besides was offered $100 cash for his lease, but refused.

He had just purchased $1,000 worth of goods in the city, paying cash for the same. He had a horse and buggy, and owed no debts. A stench having arisen in the store, the police thought it prudent to seek an entrance, which they did, but they found the stench arose from the decaying fruit. It has long been a rumor that Burch had a large sum of money on his person, which he kept in a belt around his body, and it is known he was in constant dread of being assassinated. He had arrested a half-witted fellow for threatening to kill him, and afterwards quit sleeping in the store, fearing he would be killed. He lived in constant dread of being murdered. A news butcher claims to have seen him in Macon, Ga., and he has not been seen or heard of since, and the opinion is gaining ground that he has been foully dealt with.

MAD FOXES IN SOUTH CAROLINA.

They Are Devastating the Flocks and

CHARLESTON, S. C., October 8 .- [Special.]-The mad foxes, which created such a scare among the people of this section last summer, have again appeared. Early this week Steswamp in Colleton, hearing the distressing cries of his seven-year-old boy in the woods, some two hundred yards off, hastened to the spot and discovered the child being attacked by a large mad fox, which bit and lacerated his flesh in several places. The day following the foxes made an onslaught on the dogs of Mr. Bunch, near Knightsville. He, it is reported, shot two of them and found it neces sary to kill one of his hounds, which had been bitten by them. On Friday evening last this army of mad invaders paid the farm and poultry yard of Ellison Knight a visit, and while in the act of destroying his geese his son, Capers Knight, dispatched one of them. He says if they were not ranting mad they were the wildest and hungriest set of foxes

THEY WILL GO INTO THE CONVENTIONS, But the Question Is as to What They

Will Do Afterwards. RALEIGH, N. C., October 8.—[Special.]— Mr. Marion Butler, president of the Farmers' Alliance, was interviewed by a leading allianceman, who is an earnest democrat. The latter asked Butler if any member of congress from North Carolina had voted with the republicans to bring on the present financial condition, for which Butler alleges both parties are responsible. Butler-Why, certainly, Senator Matt Ransom did. In reply to the question, "Do you intend to stand by the subtreasury plan even to disrupting the democratic party?"

Butler said: "Yes, we intend to stand by it if it splits the democratic party, but we intend to go into the democratic convention and offer our platform." To question, "Do you intend trying to make the subtreasury plan part of the democratic platform?" Butler replied: "Yes, if we have a majority we intend to stand by our demands, let the consequences be as they may, and I want you to understand that I do not speak for myself alone, but as an officer of the alliance."

THERE WILL BE NO TRUST,

Because the Planters Came to the Conclusion That It Was Impracticable. CHARLESTON, S. C., October 8 .- [Special.]-A meeting of the planters of sea island cotton was held today. It was attended by most of the planters on John's, James, Ediston and Wadmalow islands, the area where the Carolina long staple is cultivated. After a full discussion, it was decided that the plan to combine in order to prevent the sale of sea island cotton seed was impracticable, and the project was, therefore, abandoned. In the discussion it was stated that during the past season a new variety of cotton had appeared, which was grown from green seed, and was entirely distinct from sea island, but which, nevertheless, had a staple of from one to one and a half inches. The opinion was expressed that in a few years the variety would formidably compete with sea island. This ends the attempt to form a combination against the sale of sea island cotton seed, which is parchased here by long-staple cotton growers of Georgia and Florida for planting purposes.

THE CITY DEMOCRACY WINS.

Nashville Passes Through the Hottest Bat-

the of Her Existence.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., October 8.—[Special.]—
The hottest city election in the history of Nashville ended today by the overwhelming defeat of the convention ticket. It was purely a family fight, both tickets being democratic.
There has heretofore been no regularorganization of the city democracy, and this was sought to be remedied by the calling of a mass meeting, which nominated a full ticket and appointed a city democratic committee.
The city members of the county democratic ticket have claimed that they were ex-officio members of the city democratic committee, and called a convention to nominate a full ticket, which the convention did, nominating the present mayor, William Litterer, for re-election. Litterer declined, and Esquire A. S. Brown was put in his stead.
The tickets were known as the "city democratic" and the "straight democratic." Their fight grew more bitter daily, and many fights tle of Her Existence. right grew more bitter daily, and many fights resulted. The entire saloon and liquor interests were on the side of the "straight" democracy, but the result was the election of every nominee on the "city democratic" ticket by good Trainwreckers Sentenced.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., October 8.-[Special.]-A special from Gadsden this afternoon states that Judge Disque has sentenced W. F. Bentley to ten years and John Bentley, James Cross, Harvey Thomas and Ulas Eagle to twenty years each imprisonment in the penitentiary for wrecking an Alabama Great Southern train last June, near Atalla. Engineer Cotter, of Chattanooga, and his fireman were killed in this wreck.

The Two White Men Brought Back. GREENVILLE, Miss., October 8.-[Special.]-Four prisoners escaped from the county jail at 3 clockithis afternoon. John Diamond, under in dictment for murder, and one Stanton, charged with forgery, both white, and two negroes charged with minor of-enses. Diamond and Stanton were captured and brought back. The two negroes so far have not been heard from.

They Came Together.

PIGEON RIVER, N. C., October 8.—[Special.]—
The report of an affray between two farmers named Russell and Harvell, residing in Haywood county, has just reached here. THE CONSTITUTION'S informant says that Russell struck Harvell on the head with a gun, with such force as to break the stock. It is thought that Harvell will die.

Must Stay in Jail.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., October 8.—[Special.]—
The attorneys for Chris McNamara, who murdered Reese Fowler in a gambling room several weeks ago, attempted to have him released today on bond, claiming he was drunk, and, therefore, irresponsible when the crime was committed. Judge Moon heard the testimony offered and refused the petition.

JEW COLONY

Proposed Be Established

AN ADVANCE AGENT IN BRUNSWICK

Who Says That Thousands of Russian Jews Are Anxious to Find a Home in This Country.

Brunswick, Ga., October 8.—[Special.]—A few days ago a Russian Hebrew, Mr. Max Cohen, came to Brunswick. He was one of a party of about forty who came from Hamburg to New York some months ago. From New York he came to Savannah, and from the latter place to Brunswick. Mr. Cohen relates many thrilling incidents of the persecution of the Jews in Russia. Being asked what the Jews thought of this country, he said:

"They think America is a great country, a land of liberty, and where opportunities are afforded for remunerative employment, such as cannot be found in the cider country, to enjoy the blessings of liberty and have the advantage which comes from the easier opportunities it affords for making a living."

Mr. Cohen is here with the desire of finding employment and a home. His family yet remains in Russia. For them he will send as soon as he is able to secure employment or find a home. This may be a start in the direction of the colonization of some of these Russian Jews in this state and in this rection.

Speaking of this colonization scheme, Mr. McK. F. McCook and Rev. R. Rabina wrote a joint letter to Governor Northen on the subject, seeking to interest him in some plan looking to the accomplishment of this chilanthropy. The governor replied that he had not considered the matter in the aspect in which it was presented—namely, that of a colonization in this state of numbers of the Hebrew race who are fleeing from Russian persecution, and he cannot answer as to plans for organization. are freeing from Russian persecution, and he cannot answer as to plans for organization, etc., until he has the time and opportunity to give to the subject the careful consideration it demands. #### OLD VETERANS STAND TOGETHER.

They Want the Home, and So Say in Reso-

DAHLONEGA, Ga., October 8.—[Special.]—At the August meeting of the Confederate Veterans' association of Lumpkin county, a resolu-tion was introduced by W. H. McAfee and passed, endorsing the action of the i"immortal 94" in the legislature in refusing the soldiers home. That meeting was slimly attended, and that the resolution was not the voice of the old soldiers of Lumpkin county was manifested by the openly expressed indigna-tion of several who were not at that meeting.

The Boys Came In. At the September meeting of the association yesterday the old war horse, Virge Moore, made a motion to reconsider the McAfee resolution; and, as Virge had predicted, "it was killed too dead to stink," and the old confederate soldiers were set in their true light and McAfee and his resolution righteously sat down upon.

when accidentally they ran afoul of bigger game.

As they were peering around into side streets and back alleys the stillness of the night was suddenly disturbed by the screams of a woman. Locating the screams in a certain house, they quickly approached it, and, taking a position, one on each side, they soon heard enough to convince them of an attempted crime on the part of some man.

Knocking on the door they soon gained admission, where they found a negro girl and a well-known negro man. The girl, on being questioned about the disturbance, promptly charged the man with an attempted outrage, and the officers congratulated themselves on the fortunate capture.

HE WILL HAVE TIME FOR REFLECTION.

A Hancock County Man Who Got Himself Into Trouble.

Sparta, Ga., October 8.—[Special.]—A noted and turbulent negro named Josh Roff has been brought to bay here. On the train from Warrenton to Sparta he determined to riot in the expressmans car and was repeatedly ordered out. Not complying with this order, and manifesting all manner of insolence, the officer knocked him out of his car. Upon reaching Sparta Josh made a most offensive attack upon him for so doing, and cursed like a wild man in the presence of a number of ladies. Marshal Brum took himijinto custody, and Marshal Brum took himkinto custedy, and took bond for his appearance before the recorder. Then a warrant was sworn out and Pinkston arrested him and carried him to Col. Jordan's law office, where he made a dash for liberty by plunging out of a window about ten or twelve feet high. The sheriff and marshal gave chase at once. The former, by way of admonition, fired his pistol once without hurt to the fugitive. He was soom picked up and jailed. Later he appeared before the recorder and plead gullty to the charges preferred and was fined fifty dollars or to eighty days' labor in city chain gang. The Orders to the Yorktown Explained--A Telegram from Captain Schley.

Telegram from Captain Schley.

WASHINGTON, October 8.—Acting Secretary Soleby said this afternoon that the supposition that sailing orders of the gunboat Yorktown to proceed to Valparaiso were issued suddenly, and in consequence of startling information received at the navy department, is absolutely erroneous. He said the Yorktown received her preliminary orders to join the Pacific station early in September, and her final orders issued Saturday last were sent merely in the ordinary routine of business, simply directing her to sail when she was ready for sea. So far from there being any news from Chile of a startling character to cause these orders, the department has received a telegram from Captain Schley, of the Baltimore, saying that everything is quiet at Santiago and Valparaiso.

THEY ARE GONE.

The Davy Crocketts Returned Home Last Night.

THEY HAD A MOST PLEASANT VISIT.

They Put Out a Fire-Visit to Fort Mo-Pherson and the Capitol-A.

Ride Over the City.

The Davy Crockett hook and ladder company, which has been the guest of the Gate City Guard for two days, left for home last night at 12 o'clock.

Their visit has been one of unalloyed pleasure, and they have made many staunch friends while here. They came, they saw, they conquered, and went away regretting that visit had to be terminated so soon. They have seen every point of interest about the city, and met many of Atlanta's best citizens and fairest ladies. They made a jolly party of excursionists, volunteer firemen and their friends, and were determined to see all that was to be seen, and to get all the pleasure out of their southern trip possible. To nearly all of them this southern clime, with its flowers and bright sunshine, was revelation, and they enjoyed it to the fullest. Wherever they went they were treated to the utmost courtesy as the guests of the Gate City Guard and Atlanta, and they went to every nook and corner of the city. No matter what part of the city you visited yesterday, you could look in any direction and see a brown-coated, blue-capped Davy Crocket taking in the town, with a jaunty air and homelike freedom. They swarmed into the capitol corridors, the galleries of the halls of legislation; they crowded hotel rotundas, taxed the capacity of the electric cars; they went in droves to the park; visited the news paper offices, and saw everything that was going on.

At Fort McPherson.

After enjoying some delightful music by the band which they have with them, their first objective point yesterday morning was Fort McPherson. They had been invited by the electric car line to ride out to the fort, and they rode out in special cars provided for the occasion.

They were present at guard mount, and enjoyed some excellent music by the Fourth Artillery band.

They were shown around the fort and greatly admired the splendid natural advantage of its location, and the excellent equipment of the different buildings.

After making a thorough tour of the fort and grounds adjacent, the Crocketts returned

They then separated again and took in the city after their own views. A large number visited the capitol, and watched the proceedings of both houses of the Georgia legislature from the galleries for some time.

They Put Out a Fire.

White the other members of the Crocketts were looking over the city and seeing what was to be seen, two of the company, Messrs. John Kane and Doc Faust, boarded a Whitehall street electric car for ride. When near the corner of Whitehall and Fair streets an alarm of fire was rung in, and, glancing around, saw a sheet of flame shooting up from the roof of a house near by. Their fir fighting zeal asserted itself and they leaped from the car and ran to the residence, which was just beginning to burn. A ladder was procured, and with marvelous quickness they had torn the burning shingles from the roof of the house and prevented what might have been a disastrous fire.

Just as they were descending from the roof Captain Joyner dashed up, followed by the hook and ladder wagon and the smoking engine. On the way Captain Joyner had picked up Foreman Holliday, of the Davy Crocketts, and given him a fast ride to the fire. Their surprise was great to find two of the visiting and the gallant firemen were complimented on Four fire alarms were rung in during the day yesterday, and some of the Davy Crocketts took in all the fires. Some of them would catch on to the hook and ladder as it dashed by and ride out with Atlanta's firemen. Over the Electric Lines.

The Gate City Guard have entertained the Dayy Crocketts in a most royal manner, and yesterday afternoon they chartered special cars on all the electric lines in the city, and gave the entire party a ride through all the different sections of the city.

The Guard met the Crocketts at the Kimball at 3 o'clock, and special cars on the Marietta street line were boarded by them, and they rode out its entire length. The techno-logical school building and other points of in-terest were shown to the visitors. They then returned to the city and enjoyed a ride over all the other lines. The ride was splendidly enjoyed, and occupied almost the entire atternoon.

Souvenirs of Their Visit. The Davy Crocketts have seen almost everything, but the majority of them had never seen cotton growing in the fields until their Every open boll that could be found was used by the jolly Crocketts as bouttonniers.

Yesterday afternoon, Dr. Durham decided to present the entire party with a boll of cotton each as a souvenir of their visit. He sent out in the country and had a cartload of cotton stalks, filled with open bolls, brought in, and he presented it to them at the Kimbali. Every one of the party succeeded in getting possession of a boll of cotton, which was a rare novelty to them.

Their Departure. Last night at 8 o'clock the Gate City Guard, in fatigue un form, appeared at the Kimball to spend the evening mingling with their guests, and to escort them to the train.

During the evening a delightful concert was given by the Twenty-first regiment band, which was greatly enjoyed by all who heard it This is an excellent band and makes the

They will reach Chattanooga early this morning, and will spend the day in viewing that city. They will be entertained during the day by the Chattanooga firemen, and will leave there tonight at 6 o'clock for Poughkeepsie. They will reach home Sunday night, after a most delightful trip.

LAID TO REST. The Funeral of Mrs. H. R. Bloodworth

The funeral of Mrs. H. R. Bloodworth took place on yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The services were held at St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal church, conducted by the pastor, Rev. M. L. Underwood. There was a very large attendance of sorrowing friends, grieved at the loss of an estimable woman.

The services were very impressive. The choir sang "Home of the Soul," "Nearer My God to Thee," and "Till We Meet Again,"

The following gentlemen acted as pallbearers: Messrs. W. F. Manry, George Web Stevens. F. N. Malone, George R. DeSaussure, Jack Rushing, J. N. Guilliat and George Wheat. The body was placed temporarily in a vault at Westview.

The Force of Habit.

Habit, so said, is second nature, but not necessarily true. We all admit that certain habits are quite strong and very hard to overcome. So much so that sometimes it seems impossible to break them. But with a proper amount of determination and perseverence few, indeed, will rail. Habit sometimes becomes a disease. Then you need help. Lack of exercise, improper living, excessive indulgences, etc., often produce habitual constipation, and following this piles, fistula or some disease of the bowels which makes it necessary for you to have professional services. It is not only unnecessary for you to continuously take medicine, but it is decidedly injurious. Remove the effect and then treat the cause in a commonsense way and a cure will result. It takes time to do this, but if you persevere you will be fully repaid for the effort.

Many ladies suffering in this way become the victims of serious uterine diseases. This should not be, nor is it at all necessary, for if you will give me the opportunity I can cure you. My experience is large. In fact, I have given the best years of my life to the study of these troubles, etc. Does my experience entitle me to your consideration?

Respectfully,

DR. JACKSON,

Hirsch Bulding, Atlanta, Ga. The Force of Habit.

THE INVISIBLE ARMY.

from the earlist period, the idea has prevailed of a mysterious, unseen enemy to the human race warring perpetually against health and life. In the days when superstition reigned supreme, this enemy was held to be evil spirits with which the atmosphere was supposed at all times to swarm.

Relief was sought, therefore, through charms, incantations and propitiatory offerings. Under the influence of civilization this theory has disappeared, and with the light of modern science this invisible army and enemy has been exposed to view—a mighty host indeed, which no man can number. This army is composed of Microorganisms, or microbes. They are among the most minute bodies made visible by the microscope, but their increase is so rapid that unless checked by want of nutriment, they would in a few years take possession of the whole earth, to the exclusion of all other life.

other life.

A large proportion of this army is harmless, the poisonous part of it being distinguished as Pathogenic Microbes.

Some conception of the ravages of this mighty army of pathogenic microbes may be had from the general statement, that they are "the cause of four fifths of all the diseases of the human family—that they destroy more lives than war, famine, fire, murder and shipwreck combined—and that they, actually abbreviate the average term of human life by three-fourths" This army is divided into many sections, each formed of separate and distinct species, their manner of attack being various. They obtain access to the blood through the skin, through the air we breathe, the water we drink, and through inocculation. drink, and through inocculation.

But there is still another method of attack, namely: the dissemination through the but there is sail another method of attack, maniety. The dissemination through the circulation of the blood, of deadly poisons. These products of the pathogenic microbes, called ptomaines, tend not only to destroy the life of the person infected, but result finally in the destruction of the microbes which produce them. This accounts for the self-limitation of infectious diseases when not fatal, such as measles, small-pox, etc.

There are diseases, however, such as Scrofula, Contagious Blood Poison, and their results and sequences, the limitation of which has hardly yet been fixed. The old treatment of mercury and potash would at best only hold the symptoms of these diseases in check, hoping that the pathogenic microbes might be destroyed by their own virus. This may happen in a term of years, but in the meantime the treatment kills both the microbe and the patient.

has for sixty years been forcing out these pathogenic microbes from the blood, through the pores of the skin, thus curing the disease, and at the same time building up the general health of the patient. When SWIFT'S SPECIFIC enters the blood, the pathogenic microbes take their departure through the pores of the skin, the poison is eliminated, and the patient is well. That the germs of these diseases are expelled from the body through the pores of the skin, there can be no sort of doubt, as it has been demonstrated and settled beyond controversy by distinguished micrologists, and as S. S. S. S. acts directly through the skin, there can be no doubt of the way in which it has cured thousands, and is destined to cure

EDWARD PARSONS

To Owners of Country Lands in the Southern States—Gentlemen: Thankful for the liberal list of property placed in my hands for sale, I have made arrangements with several of the best agricultural newspapers in the eastern and western states to have all my country lands printed in their papers from this date. By so doing I hope to induce a large number of good agriculturists to come and live with us, knowing that we have millions of acres of the best land under the san waiting for them. By my system of entry you will only write the number and you may rely on a correct answer from me.

No. 138.—8 r-h, two-stories and observatory, in Marietta, Ga.; 4 cottages, 2 barns, all new; 10 acres of land. A bargain for thirty days, $6.200. No. 117.—Plantation of 1,200 acres, adjoining the city of Perry, Houston county, Ga.; 3/2 mile from Perry depot, a branch of the C. R. R. of Georgia; the mansion is in the city, and contains 10 rooms with every convenience for the family, situated in a beautiful oak grove. The plantation can be divided into five farms, one 6-room house with several cottages, barns and other buildings suitable to the plantation. It is high table land of a superior quality for the growth of sugar cane, cotton, corn and stock. There is a never-falling stream of water running through the property. A beautiful fish pond can be made with but little expense; about 700 cleared, from 200 to 300 in pasture, the remaining in timber. It is situated in one of the most healthy parts of the state. This property has been in possession of the owner and is in a high state of cultivation, with every convenience; a number of good wells of water; there are good churches and schools in the city, and the society of Perry is very good; it is now offered for sale as a whole or to be divided into farms. Price, $25,000; one-third cash, balance 1 and 2 years, with 8 per cent.

FIFTY-DAY SESSIONS.

Wants the Constitution The House Amended.

SESSIONS ANNUAL

An Important Bill Passed by the House of Representatives, Which the People Will Endorse at the Polls.

No more long sessions of the legislature. That's what the house of representatives said yesterday, and it spoke by a majority of more than two thirds. It passed twe bills dealing with this ques

The two bills go together. Both provide for amendments to the constitution to be subnitted to a vote of the people. Mr. Wheeler, of Walker, is the author of

The first provides for annual sessions of the egislature to meet on the fourth Wednesday in October. The second provides that these sessions hall not continue longer than fifty days un ess an impeachment trial be pending. These bills were taken up the first thing in the house yesterday and Mr. Wheeler and Mr. Hill, of Meriwether, argued briefly in their

Mr. Fleming, of Richmond, opposed the roposition on the ground that he was op-osed to compulsory annual sessions. He did not believe in putting a straight jacket on the legislature by fixing a date upon which it was solutely compelled to adjourn.

Mr. Hill, of Meriwether, replied, stating that the business could be transacted in fifty days each year. An average of fifty days would cut off the sessions of each general assembly, which would mean a saving to the state of $60,000. He thought the people had a right to say whether they wanted the consti-tution amended to this effect or not. Dr. Hand, of Baker, likewise spoke briefly

The first bill passed by 117 to 22, And the second by 118 to 17.

Than this the house has done no more important work this session, and it goes without saying that the people will endorse this action at the polls—and by a practically unanimous voice so amend the state constitution.

It is getting so that the legislature never adjourns at its first session within the limit prescribed by the constitution, and the adjourned session is usually strung out for one hundred days or more.

Here is the record of the past four legisla-

	Fall Session.	Summer Session.	Total.
1884.	46 days	100 days.	146 days.
1886.	50 "	107 "	157 "
1888.	46 "	130 "	176 "
1890.	48 "	* 100 "	148 "

From the above it will be seen that the state fould have saved from fifty to eighty-five thousand dollars in the expenses of each general assembly had the constitution been so amended as to provide for fifty-day annual

For Safe Roadbeds.

The bill providing for inspection of railroads by the commission and granting the commission power to force the railroads to keep their tracks and roadbed in a safe condition, was taken up and passed.

The bill was lost last week by a quorum failing to vote on it. It was, however, recon-Mr. Wooten, of Dougherty, argued at length lines of road were all right, but the branch over and the railroad companies should be forced to put them in safe condition.

Mr. Bush, of Miller; Mr. Wheeler, of Walker; Mr. Holtzclaw, of Houston, and Dr.
Hand, of Baker, favored the bill. It passed by a vote 116 to 8.

Bills Passed and Defeated. Mr. Brinson's bill to amend the constitution in order that new counties can be formed was defeated. The purpose of the bill was evidently to make a new county out of parts of Burke, Screven, Bulloch and Emanuel, and to make Millen the county site.

It, however, failed to receive the requisite two-thirds majority, and was lost. Mr. Norman's bill to relieve the securities on the bond given by Captain J. L. Fleming, deceased, of the Liberty Independent Troop, for arms belonging to the state destroyed by fire was passed. The bill requiring all railroads in the state, including electric roads, to furnish equal and separate accommodations for whites and blacks was reported to the railroad committee to be back Saturday.

Mr. Huff introduced a bill supplementary to the appropriation bill making appropriations for the payment of witnesses in the Western and Atlantic betterment case,
A bill to pay J. J. Yarborough, of Opelika, $100 for arresting a criminal and delivering him to the sheriff of Coweta county was passed.

Afternoon Session Work. At the afternoon session of the house a reso lution by Mr. Calvin was passed limiting speeches from now until the end of the sessito ten minutes each, except as to chairmen of the committee reporting bills, who are to have twenty minutes.

Another resolution was passed providing that a calendar be printed each day containing the bills ready for a third reading.

A bill was passed providing for paying bailiffs of county courts. Another bill was passed prohibiting the issuance of liquor licenses between the time a prohibition election is called and the result declared. The committee's substitute for the Clifton general road bill was passed at the afternoon session of the house.

It is a very important piece of legislation, being the first general road law providing for the maintenance of public roads by taxation ever passed by the Georgia legislature. Mr. Holtzclaw, of Houston, is the author of the substitute. It places the direction of the road work in the hands of the county commissioners, county judge or ordinary, whichever of these authorities is in charge of county matters. A tax of two-tenths of 1 per cent is authorized to be levied, which, with the commutation tax, not exceeding four dollars per year, shall constitute a road fund. Roads may also be worked by chaingangs. Opposed to Night Sessions. Quite a fight was precipitated late yestesday afternoon over a resolution by Mr. Fleming that the house meet tonight and tomorrow night at 7 o'clock, and continue in session until 10 c'clock.

night at 7 o'clock, and continue in session until 10 o'clock.

An amendment was offered and accepted by Mr. Fleming that the house meet at 8 o clock in the morning each day from now until adjournment. The majority of the house apparently favored the resolution, and consequently its opponents resorted to filibustering tactics to prevent a vote. They managed to hold it off until adjournment. The question will, however, come up this morning.

What Was Done in the Upper House Yesterday.

The Berner bill did not come up yesterday

as was expected. But it is the special order

The committee on railroads, reported that the bill do pass by substitute. The substitute was printed in yesterday's Constitution. A Minority Report.

A minority report was then submitted signed by Senators Culpepper, Zachry and Williams, of the senate committee on railroads. The minority report states that there is no need for the passage of any act to prevent any evils which may accrue from any sales, leases, contracts or agreements between any companies or individuals controlling railroads in this or individuals controlling railroads in this state, as there is already all appropriate legislation necessary. The report cites the fact that the code gives the railroad commission full and absolute power over such contracts requiring them to be submitted to the commission for inspection and correction, and further provides that any such contract not approved by the commission "shall be held to be violations of article 4 section 2 paragraph 4 of the by the commission "shall be held to be violations of article 4, section 2, paragraph 4 of the constitution and shall be illegal and void."
The code further provides that if any railroad company shall be found guilty of a violation of the law it may be sued and shall incur a penalty of from $1,000 to $5,000. The last legislature gave the commission full power to make joint rates between two or more connecting roads, and also the authority over the erection of depots. The committee therefore conclude that ample power has been vested in the commission to thoroughly protect the conclude that ample power has been vested in the commission to thoroughly protect the people of the state, and that any attack or threatened attack upon existing relations be-tween railroad companies in this state would not only be detrimental to the public interest, but to the prosperity of the state and destruc-tive of investments which have been made prodet legislative superiors, and therefore hurtinder legislative sanction, and therefore hurt-under legislative sanction, and therefore hurtful to all classes.

At the presentation of this minority report it was decided to have 100 copies of the original bill, with its substitute and the minority report actached, printed for the use of senators. It was further decided to make the bill the special order of today, immediately after reading the journal.

A bill, proposed by Mr. Tatum, of the thirty-seventh district, to introduce an act to incorpo-rate the Atlantic and Northwestern Railroad Company, which, virtually, means the construc-tion of a railroad from Port Royal to La-Grange, was referred to the committee on railroads.

On the motion of Mr. Nunnally, the bill of Mr. Smith, of the twenty-eighth, was taken up for consideration. It was entitled a bill to prohibit persons from purchasing or bartering spirituous intoxicating liquors, or malt liquors, in any county in this state, where the sale of the same is prohibited by law or high license, upon the recommendation of grand juries, to provide a punishment for the Speeches were made upon the bill by Messrs. Nunnally, Smith, of the twenty-eighth, Todd and Terrell. On a vote the bill was lost.

Mr. Dunwoody's bill to incorporate the Brunswick and Altamaha Canal Company and grant certain powers and privileges to the same, was passed by a unanimous vote. The Criminal Laws.

Mr. Williams's house resolution, entitled a resolution to direct the governor to appoint a commission to revise and codify all the criminal laws of this state, occasioned much heated discussion.

Mr. Beck moved to disagree to the report of the committee, which was unfavorable to the passage of the bill, for the purpose of offering a substitute which, he thought, would obviate the objectionable features of the original bill. The matter was discussed by Messrs. Cabaniss, Beck, Hodges, Glenn, Williams and Hill.

Mr. Glenn spoke emphatically for the bill's reconsideration, as many of the present criminal laws had been in operation for sixty years, and the penalties in many instances were too severe. One man, in Mr. Glenn's knowledge, has served eight years for stealing a chicken, and still wears the stripes. The result of the bill would be to reduce many quoted felonies to simple misdemeanors. The report of the committee was not disagreed to, thus killing the bill.

A bill introduced by Mr. Terrell to amend the charter of the North Georgia Telegraph Company, was referred to the committee on corporations.

House bill of Mr. Lewis, of Hancock, to provide for redemption of real property sold at sheriff's sale, was lost.

Uniformity in Schoolbooks The committee on public schools reporting adversely on the bill of Mr. Culver, which was an act to establish and maintain a uniform series of textbooks to be used in all the public schools of this state, Mr. Culver moved to disagree to the report.

The motion brought forth some emphatic

The motion both the advocates and oppo-nemotion brought forth some emphase speeches from both the advocates and opponents of the measure.

Mr. Irvine, chairman of the school committee which rendered an adverse report, had to say for the measure: "The benefit of state uniformity in textbooks weuld accrue to farm tenants and railroad laborers, who are about 5 per cent of the people, while it would hazard a heavy loss to the 95 per cent.

"One hundred and thirty-seven counties cannot buy books cheaper than one county, because book publishers sell at the same price, whether to one or many. Books are published cheap enough, but the cost from the publisher to the patron is exorbi ant. State uniformity will kill out competition among authors and between publishers. County uniformity promotes competition as one county acts as a check on another. This bill would take from many school systems rights guaranteed to the contract of the country many school systems rights guaranteed to them by the present constitution. State uniformity is another step towards paternalism and should be resisted."

In his speech for the measure Mr. Culver stated that the bill creates no new salaried officers. The state invests no more Con-stated that the bill creates no new salaried officers. The state invests no money. Consequently no appropriation is necessary. By the passage of the bill we take all the chances to be benefitted and none to lose. The resolution adopted at the winter session has a ready born fruit. Since January thereafter the price of books was reduced 25 per cent. Nor does the bill tend to break down competition. On the contrary it provides for the sharpest kind of competition, namely the sealed bids. Accompanying the bid shall be samples of the books and upon the acceptance of the contract the schoolbook commission shall take a sufficient bond for faithful compliance with the contract.

The adverse report was, however, agreed to and on motion of Mr. Culver the bill was Several bills were read on second hearing.

Other Bills Passed. A house bill to change the time for holding A house bill to define the term "domestic wines" to provide a penalty for selling or offering for sale other wines in this state claiming the same to be "domestic wines."

At the close of the senate a communication was read from the president of the Piedmont exposition, James R. Wylie, to Hon. R. H. Mitchell, president of the senate, inviting the honorable body of senators to participate in the opening ceremonies of the exposition, on October 19th, at 12 m.

It was thankfully accepted with a rising vote.

CAPITOL GOSSIP.

At noon today the senate will vote upon the substitute for the Berner bill. It is said there will be but little debate. The matter of railroad legislation has been so thoroughly studied and discussed by all the senators that speeches would be of little effect.

Of course there was much speculation around the capitol vesterday as to the result of today's vote. There are many advocates of the bill just as it came from the house. Again there are perhaps equally as many advocates of the senate/committee's substitute. And then there are a goodly number of senators who do not think any sort of legislation would be wise.

The chances are that the senate will vote down everything.

The governor has signed a bill which gave him a good deal of concern. It provides that the white children of Stone Mountain shall be educated by taxes paid by whites, and negro children shall get their schooling from funds paid by their race only. A similar bill became a law under Gov ernor Gordon for another city in Georgia. He prepared a veto but failed to send it into the legislature within the period required by law.

Indications Point to a Conclusion of the

OF THE "HONEST MAN'S"

The Defense Will Begin This Morning. Other Matters That Came Up in the Departments of the Custom House.

The trial of the Honest Man's Friend and Protector case will undoubtedly be concluded some time today. This morning the defense will introduce its evidence and the attorneys say it will be somewhat brief. Among those to testify will be Representative Cagle.

Four witnesses were placed on the stand yesterday. Frank Dorsey was the first to give evidence. He stated that Wigginton had approached him in the spring of 1889, and tried to get him to join a band to prevent informing. He had tried to dissuade them from forming one and refused to have anything to do with it. R. S. Henderson told that Wigginton had confessed to him at the Jasper jail having been present at the burning. On cross-examination it was shown, however, that Wigginton had made such an acknowledgement under promise made by Henderson to do all he could

The testimony was not admissible. Confession actuated by hope of reward or fear of punishment, as Mr. Glenn proved this to be, is ruled out, and Henderson was withdrawn as a

J. A. and Bill Tomberlin both spoke very briefly and to no importance. Mike Stoner was then put on the stand. He told how he had gone with Deputy Sheriff Mann, and they had together secured the copy of the by-laws and masquerade of the "Honest Man's" band, Colonel Darnell presented these, and the witness examined and identlfied them. The district attorney himself testified. He stated that he had gotten these articles from Mann, who himself had procured them from Coffee, the traitor to the band. 'We would like to have Mr. Dorsey 'exam ine a paper," said Mr. Darnell, when he had retired from the stand. The witness had gone, thinking he was excused for the day. 'We will introduce him, then, tomorrow the prosecuting attorney continued. "With that reservation the testimony for the prosecu

This was satisfactory and Mr. Glenn pro ded to outline the character of the defense which would be conducted. It was becoming late and court adjourned until this morning at

The argument will most probably begin with the afternoon session and the case go to the jury late today or tomorrow morning.

Moonshining Penalties.

In the district court, three moonshining cases were settled with dispatch yesterday morning.

Henry Hooper, a young boy of Towns county, pleaded guilty to distilling and was ed to one month in Fulton county jail. William W. Harkins, of Union county, entered a plea of guilty of working in a distillery, and received a similar penalty.

Elisha Burns, of Fulton county, was given one month, after pleading guilty of retailing.

A Welcome Letter.

The cool weather and the having to moun four flights of stairs to attend court, have drawn forth question after question as to when the postoffice elevator and heaters would be place. Yesterday Collector of Customs Wimbish received the following very pleasant letter from the Washington contractor: To C. C. Wimbish, Custodian United States Postoffice, Atlanta, Ga. Sir: In answer to yours of 27th ultimo, I would say that the work of getting out material for the building under your charge is being pushed forward as speedily as possible, and I hope to ship two or three carloads about the middle of next week. I will then forward the erection with dispatch. Very truly yours,

JOHN LYON.

An Unusual Proceeding.

For some time Deputy Marshal Newt Mc-Donald has been after two moonshiners in Har-Johald has been after two moonshiners in Haralson county. He made several trips for them, but without avail. On Wednesday afternoon he received a note from each of them, James Carrol and Samuel Johnson, stating that if he would call at a certain point they would give themselves up to him, and he would have no further trouble.

The deputy marshal was very cautious about going. He went, however, on the next train, taking his chances about following a wild.

going. He went, however, on the next train, taking his chances about following a wild-goose chase. He got to Tallapoosa, Ga., and went to the place designated. He looked, and there the two men were awaiting his arrival.

Both were arrested and brought before Commissioner Haight yesterday, where they gave missioner Haight yesterday, where they gave a bond of $300 each.

To Extend the Service

The clerks of the railway mail service are busy arranging for the extension of the mail service on the Marietta and North Georgia from Blue Ridge, a distance of 104 miles, making a through line from Marietta to Knoxyille.

The addition will take effect on Monday.

Cases Postponed.

All cases set in either the circuit or district court have been postponed until next week. Judge Newman announced yesterday that the "Honest Man's" trial would be the only one to occupy the attention of the court the remainder of the week.

WHAT CAUSED IT.

One of the Carpenters Who Quit Work Talks.

Talks.

Foreman Sawyer, who quit work at the Young Men's Christian Association building Tuesday, has a word to say.

"I did not refuse to work," said Mr. Sawyer, with H. G. Forsyth because he was not a union man. But it was because Forsyth was trying to undermine me, and was talking about me on the outside. There was no jealousy, as Mr. Peck says, for I would not be jealous of another man's hard work. If Dr. Peck told Forsyth that I was foreman and should be obeyed, it did no good."

"I want to say, too," Mr. Sawyer went on, "that there was no strike. It was simply a quit on my part on account of a disagreement. I had nothing to do with the men quitting, and I understand they quit because they had rather support a union man than a non-union man. I had charge of the men at the High building just as I did at the Young Men's Christian Association building. I always got my instructions directly from Dr. Peck and always pleased him. Any man that did not obey my orders I had full power to discharge, but it seems that my authority was somewhat curtailed on the Young Men's Christian Association building, for I did not want Forsyth to work with me. But he was kept against the wishes of all the men who turned out with me."

THE NEW YORK MARKET.

The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock

Exchange. NEW YORK, October 8. The stock market today exhibited little life in any of its parts, and once more duliness became one of the ruling features of dealings, though after considerable strength in the forenoon the though after considerable strength in the forenoon the hammering operations of traders and bears were sufficient to cause the entire loss of the improvement. Foreign purchasts was the principal cause of the strong and higher opening here, advances over last night's figures extending to % per cent. Demestic operators, however, made a very feeble response to this movement, and, in fact, the disposition to buy at present has been reduced to the minimum. The early improvement was supplemented by further fractional gains in some stocks during the forenoon, but not until the leading shares had been again depressed to about last night's level by the persistent pressure from bear last night's level by the persistent pressure from bear sources. These hammering operations were abated after noon for a time, and the market showed an aproach to the midsummer dullness, but prices relieved of the depressing influence made some advance. riced Vanderbilts, Atchison, Burlington, Rock Island, Chicago Gas and some specialties made considerable improvement, aided by the further arrivals of gold, to-gether with the prevailing case in the money market and the heavy tone of foreign exchange. Prices, ho ever, never got far from those of the opening, and in the last hour another sharp attack was made upor Atchison securities, and the stock reacted nearly 1 per cent on large transactions, wiping out all the former gain and something in addition. The general list re-sponded feebly to this attack, Rock Island and Missponded feebly to this attack, Rock Island and Missouri Pacific showing the most weakness under pressure. The market finally closed quiet and rather heavy, generally at insignificant changes from the opening figures, as well as from last night's prices Final changes are irregular, and in all cases for small fractions. NEW YORK, October 8.—Although people here expected an advance in the Bank of England rate to at least 31/2 per cent, still the governors of that institution decided to leave the rate unchanged. On this good piece of news. London lost about one thousand shares of stock, which produced an advance of ½ per cent all around. After London buying orders had been supplied, the market became intensely dull, and prices were swayed forward and backward by the room traders. The only two stocks that showed any life were Atchison and Chicago Gas. The former was sold by e Gould interest, and the latter was advan decision in a lawsuit that was very favorable to the old company. Considering the foreign buying, the market did not come up to expectations, and we think this duliness shows conclusively that the buying power is for the time satisfied.

Lehman Bros. Cotton Letter.

NEW YORK, October 8—The market today has been active, the main influence again being frost reports, which this morning were quite general, embracing almost every state in the cotton belt, resulting in a strong market at moderately higher prices. Later in the day, however, on predictions for warmer weather, values again became easier, declining about 10 points from the highest of the day. Our Liverpool correspondents evidently take a very favorable view of the future course of values, having today cabled us that spots were strong and dearer with futures firm in consequence of the active state of the Manchester market, and in consequence of nervousness on the part of the while under the many conflicting advices and guesses as to what the bureau may be, we may have a nervous and fluctuating market tomorrow, chances are in favor of higher prices, and would accordingly advocate buy-ing with any decline.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, October 8.-Wheat ruled somewhat unsettled with the average price higher. December started at 99 40@$1.00½, but with liberal offerings the were very generous, and there was another buying spurt which sent the price to $1.00%, but continental cables coming lower, and selling being very free it soon dropped to 99/2c, then kept fairly steady and

Corn was fairly active, but the feeling was somewhat unsettled, though stronger in the main. The firmness in wheat helped it some, but the principal firmness was due to the continued small receipts. October opened and to the continued small receipts. October opened at 52½c, sold up to 52½c, broke to 52½c, rallied to 53c, dropped to 52½c, held steady around that figure for a time, but weakened at the end and closed at 52½c. Oats were quiet and closed without material change rom Tuesday's last figures. Provisions were weak and lower on free selling by ongs and packers, but closed with part of the loss re-rained and at figures somewhat below the closing Lamson Bros. & Co.'s Grain Letter.

Private Wire to Youngblood & Haas. CHICAGO, October 8.—As indicated Tuesday, the wheat market opened higher this morning. London and Liverpool reported strong and higher. The condition of the wheat in the fields in the west is unimproved. Speculators in that region are inclined to be bullish, and had a few buying orders to be executed on the opening. These with the local characteries. on the opening. These, with the local shorts, were about the only buyers. On the other hand, some e and the only one-same and there hand, some eastern and a few local speculators, who were heavy buyers a few days ago, supplied the wants of the shorts, and others who were willing to pay about 100. The market closed rather heavy, with about half of the advance lost. We think it will require not only strong cables, but good buying orders from abroad to sustain prices tomorrow.

cables, but good buying orders from abroad to sustain prices tomorrow.

The feeling in corn still continues quite bearish, and the market is very dull and inactive, without any special tendency.

Holders of December pork were again the principal sellers, and the decline has a depressing tendency on all kinds of hog products. The demand for ribs and lard continues good, and we are inclined to think the long side is the safest, after the recent decline.

THE DAY ON 'CHANGE.

The Bulls Started Out Early, but the Bears Kun Them In.

NEW YORK, October 8 .- Sun's cotton article: Futures opened feverishly unsettled, values soon taking a downward turn, the market closing easy at a decline of thirteen points on October and eight to nine points on other months from yester-day's closing prices. The market got so entirely day's closing prices. The market got so entirely "long" yesterday on frost accounts and the approhension of the scare they would cause in the Liverpool market, that some fresh stimulant of a decided character was needed to keep up the pace that had been set. It was not forthcoming. It is true Liverpool opened higher, but partially receded in the last hour. There were additional frost accounts, but they were not fully confirmed by government bulletins, and, therefore, not generally credited. Therefore, after two brief efforts to pit up prices, selling to realize became the order of the day, under which prices steadily gave way until most of yesterday's advance had been lost. The crop movement did not show an excess over last year of recent days, and the fact that the figures at Galveston are steadily small attracted some attention. The coronous export clearances for the day, about forty thousand bales, were also referred to, but it was evident at the close that the market had relapsed into that dazed condition from which the recent frost accounts rescuight. Spot cotton was farly active for home consumption at steady prices.

When signed they will both be laws in force. One paper is the ordinance authorizing the squaree of $140,000 of city bonds bearing be per cent interest, and falling due in 1922. These bonds are to redeem bonds falling due ext January, and are to be issued to iquidate Atlanta's floating debt.

The other paper is the ordinance increasing he salaries of the members of the general council from $200 to $600 a year. There Will Be Three of Them.

There Will Be Three of Them.

The ordinance creating the office of third tation house keeper will become a law today. Heretofore there have been only two.

Several weeks ago the board of poace commissioners passed a resolution requesting the council to adopt an ordinance increasing the imber of station house keepers.

And it was done.

The police board will meet in regular nonthly session next Mondav night, and will hen elect the third man. This will give the tation house keepers eight hours' service with he rest of the force. For the position there are several candidates.

Nothing Done Yet.

The committees having the fire department eadquarters in hand have done nothing yet.

They may meet today some time.

Touching the contemplated exchange of No. engine house for a lot of Maddox, Rucker & Co.'s on Alabama street, Mr. Maddox says:

"Captain Joyner asked me if I would sell fity feet fronting on Alabama street, and exending back 140 feet, next to the icehouse. I lid offer it to him for $25,000. He then proposed an exchange of this property for the property occupied by fire engine house No. 1. The committee on the fire department examined the property and thought the change would be a good thing for the city. I had rather buy real estate than sell, as my observation has been that those who seil, in most intances, make a mistake, but I did agree to sell him the property for $25,000, which is a low price for it. I prefer the money for it, but I agreed to and will take, if the trade is consummated at once, the fire company property in exchange for ours, but if I had not already ummated at once, the fire company property n exchange for ours, but if I had not already flered the property at that price, I would not ow do so. If the exchange is made, any one an get the fire company property for $25,000, now or after it is made."

Will Ride Now. The tax assessors are now trying to put $375 if the city's money into a horse, wagon and when next they take the field the assessor will ride around.

The Forsyth Street Bridge. The Phonix Bridge Company, the contractors for the Forsyth street bridge, may not unertake the work.

They are not at all pleased with the situation. on.

When the representative of the bridge comany was in Atlanta a few weeks ago, the omtract was drawn and sent to the company

by the agent. In the contract the city bound itself to pay for only $16,000 of the work this year, the balance of the contract price to be paid next year as the work goes on. The company did not like the contract, and yesterday a letter was received from them by Mayor Hemphill. A reply explaining the situation fully will be sent the company. THAT UNDERGROUND RAILWAY, an Old Citizen.

Dalton, Ga., October 8.—[Special.]—'Squire John P. Love, who probably knows more of old Dalton than any other one man, gives an interesting theory of the underground railroad recently discovered four feet below the surface, in the Hotel Dalton sewer ditch. He was in this place during its occupation by the federals, during the war, and says that they built no railroad on this ground. His theory is that it was built some forty-five years ago, in this way: When the Calloway company procured a charter for what is now the East Tennessee road to Knoxviile, Colonels Edmondson and Bishop, of this (then Murray) county, antagonized the East Tennessee combination and procured a charter for a railroad from Dalton to Red Clay, on the state line, and the contest was one of bitter political faction for several years in legislative elections. Finally, both parties having charters, while the East Tennesseeans were building this way from the Hiwassee river, Edmondson and Bishop lo-cated their depot grounds in Dalton, put in a foundation for the depot, and began the work of grading. This link of truckway was built from the depot a few hundred yards, and finally kept the East Tennessee off the grounds, which it would today pay $100,000 to possess. The Calloway growd was too strong for our county man, and finally forced their right into the town, after several pitched battles and many years of litigation. IGNITED BY A MATCH.

The Hawkinsville Cotton Warehouse Destroyed by Fire.

HAWKINSVILLE, Ga., October 8 .- [Special.] Fire broke out in McCormick & Bridge's Lone Star warehouse today at 11:55 o'clock a. m., and in a very few minutes the flames spread so rapidly that they were beyond the control of the fire department. There was a strong wind from the north-west, which caused the fire to spread rapidly, and it was seen that the fifteen or sixteen hundred bales of cotton were doomed. While the loss is great, it fails upon the insurance companies principally, for most of the cotton well insured, and the brick warehouse had $2,500 on it. The origin of the fire is known. The wheel of a cotton truck ran over a match which ignited and set fire to some loose cotton Every effort was made to stop the fire, but the truckers and one of the clerks were compelled to flee. There was about sixtyfive thousand dollars insurance on the cotton and warehouse. The London, Liverpool and Globe Insurance Company loses $13,000, the Ætna $15,000, and the Home

But It Was Empty-The Electric Lights Out of Order-A Military Election.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., October 8.—[Special.]—Mr. Norton, a merchant and also a justice of the peace of Cairo, was robbed in this city last night. The amount of which he is loser is over $200. Mr. Norton came up yesterday afternoon to meet some obligations here today. He spent the night with Mr. J. W. Lee, a friend of his. He went to his room about 10 o'clock, but did not woo sleep until midnight, so he burglary took place between that time and daylight this morning. His pants were found in the yard. Near by lay the purse open and empty. The manner in which the burglary was executed was plain. An insecure blind gave access to the room, and a long pole with a hook did the rest. As Mr. Norton made no display or told any one about having the money with him, it is a mystery bow the burglars spotted him for a victim. There is a gang of local crooks working in the city, and nearly every night some one is made a loser by a midnight visit. This is three burglaries so far this week.

The City in Darkness.

The city is in darkness tonight, except where an occasional gaslight pierces through the gloom. There has been lively skirmishes for lamps, and even the candle has been brought into use. A shafting at the electric light station is out of fix, and it is doubtful if the light will be turned on again for two or three nights. In the meantime kicking is the order of the day, or rather the night.

A Military Election. The Thomas Hussars held their annual election with the following result tonight: W. R. McIntyre, captain; J. T. Curtright, first lieutenant; E. M. Mallette, orderly sergeant; D. Elias, secretary; C. H. Williams, quartermaster sergeant.

METHODISTS

Second Day's Proceedings of Ecumenical Council.

GALLOWAY'S

Work of the Church in the Southern States.

REPORT OF THE COLORED METHODISTS.

Methodists from Other Countries Tell of the Progress of Methodism-Greetings Sent from Other Cities.

WASHINGTON, October 8 .- In contrast with the dull, rainy skies of yesterday was the bright, sunny October morning which favored the delegates to the Ecumenical Methodist council when they assembled for the second day's session. At the beginning of the session the attendance seemed smaller than yesterday, but before the proceedings had far advanced the available space in the body and galleries of the church was filled with delegates and interested spectators. The presiding officer's chair was filled by Rev. Dr. T. B. Stephenson, of London, president of the Wesleyan conference.

The session opened with devotional exercises, a most eloquent prayer being offered by Dr. Griffin W. Wilson, of England, who has achieved a notable reputation as a missionary among the Feejee islanders.

When these services concluded, the secretary, Rev. Dr. King, called the roll of deles, beginning with the eastern section, which comprises Europe and the British de-Telegrams of Greeting.

The business committee announced the re-ception of telegrams of greeting, addressed to the conference, from the Nashville conference and the United Evangelical church coun cil. Invitations were laid before the council and accepted as follows: For Thursday evening, October 15th, reception by the trustees of the American university. Friday, October 9th, reception by the pastors of the African Episcopal churches of Washington. The assignment of October 15th for the reception of fraternal delegates changed to October 12th.

The business committee named Bishop Merrill, of Chicago, and Rev. Dr. William Arthur, of London, to preside over the con-ference during the second session of the third day, and the first session of the fourth day respectively.

Preliminary to the delivery of addresses of the day, Bishop Hurst, of Washington, in a few appropriate remarks, called attention to the fact that the chair, made from two beams of the City Road chapel, the corner stone of which was laid by John Wesley, was now oc-cupied by the presiding officer, and the orig-inal Epworth Bible lay upon the stand.

The Subject for Consideration. The subject assigned to the programme for consideration during the morning session was "The Present Status of Methodism in the Eastern Section," and an essay was delivered by Rev. Dr. Waller, of London, secretary of the Wesleyan conference.

Bishop Galloway's Address. The presiding officer of the afternoon ses slon, Dr. A. Carman, general superintendent of the Methodist church of Canada, an nounced that Bishop C. B. Galloway, of Jackson, Miss., representing the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, would next address the council. Bishop Galloway devoted his remarks largely to the subject of the status of Methodism in this country. Speaking for the south, he said that it had a rich Methodist heritage. The first Methodist society was e. The first Methodist society was organized and the first chapel built there organized and the first chapel built. The first Methodist missionary society was also organized there. The spirit of Methodism seemed peculiarly to fit southern temperament, as evinced by its warm re-coption and rapid growth. The first itinerant preacher came from under a southern sky, and Jesse Lee went orth from the south to evangelize New England. Every sixth soul in the south was Methodist. There Methodism had passed the apologetic period. The old period of persecution and ridicule had passed away. Methodism had graven itself deeply into society. All grades of wealth, all positions of political grades of wearth, all positions of political responsibility, were open to it. In the south the original creed was God, and theological adventurers found no favor there. After a trial of more than a century, the people were satisfied with Methodist itineracy and superinsatisfied with Methodist it in eracy and superintendency. Theirs was pre-eminently a sent and not a called ministry. With them it would be an impeachment of honesty to be accused of seeking a special place, and no army had ever had fewer men to desert a flag or field, there was little sympathy with those who believed in shirking responsibility for men and imposing fancy franchise upon women. [Applause.] There had consequently been a hearty growth in the church south—a satisfying growth in cities, and a majestic growth in the rural districts. In the country was raised a purer, steadier In the country was raised a purer, steadler citizenship, and he would not neglect in favor of the denizens of cities the men who stood hind the plow. Rev. Dr. William Briggs, of Toronte, represented, he said, the Methodist church without prefix or suffix. He described the enormous undaries of the dominion, and paid a tribute to the energy of its people

African Methodists. The third address was delivered by Bishop

B. W. Arnott, of Wilberforce, O., representing the African Methodist Episcopal church. He was greeted with applause when he came upon the platform. The bishop said he spoke for vestern section, with 20,000,000 population, and that of these be represents 19,000,000 per e. There was a dark side as well as a light de to every question. He recalled that in resley's Chronicles it was shown that in 1758 Wesley baptized one white and two colored men; that with Phillip Embry and Barbara Heck was Betty, the colored servant.

"We are equal in organ; equal in responsibility and in destiny," said the bishop. "We are connected with the British and American Methodists—no matter where they found their source, and by the grace of God we are going to stay there." [Applause.]

to stay there." [Applause.]

Continuing, the speaker recalled that the colored people had participated in every step of growth of Methodism. They had sat up high in the south and behind the door up north, but they had the grace of God in their hearts all the time. Now there were 8,752 traveling preachers in the African church. Then his Protestant Episcopal brothers had some, too. They married their some Then his Protestant Episcopal brothers had some, too. They married their sons to other's daughters, and if these was a good thing in either church they were sure to get it. Altogether there were more than half of the negroes in the United States influenced by African Methodist pulpits. There were peculiar missions for the African church. It had to show the negro, not only how to wear the golden slippers over there, but to get in war shoes on Pennsylvania avenue, that he should be educated and should earn and keep money, for by a fat pocketbook he would find the way to the Anglo Saxon hearts. [Laughter.]

Sunday and the World's Fair.

At the conclusion of the addresses, Bishop Fowler offered a resolution looking to the appointment of a committee of five to prepare a suitable statement of views of Methodism on the question of keeping the Sabbath at the world's fair. As there was some questions as to the proper procedure, the resolution was temporarily withdrawn by Bishop Fowler and the council adjourned.

A NEW TRIAL FOR DR. BAKER Is What His Attorneys Are Now Talk-

CAPITOL AVENUE.

Electric Cars and Asphalt Pavements for This Beautiful Street.

THE RESIDENTS WANT THEM BADLY

A Large and Earnest Meeting Last Night The Committees Report Success. Important Matters Discussed,

An asphalt pavement and electric cars for Capitol avenue.

These comforts have long been coveted and dreamed of by the people who live in this beautiful street, but hitherto no concerted effort has been made to secure them. Now they are in sight, almost flat accompli. The meeting of Capitol avenue residents and property owners last night at the home of Dr. J. W. Rankin was large and earnest, and when it dissolved everybody was in a good humor, feeling that a great deal had been accom-

Dr. J. W. Rankin was chairman and Mr. O.

E. Mitchell was secretary.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved, and the chairman called for the reports of the various committees upon whom had been imposed specific duties. They Want Asphalt Pavements.

Mr. George Muse, chairman of the committee on streets, made a verbal report regarding the investigations made. He stated that when the committee was first formed every member seemed in favor of paving Capitol avenue with asphalt. He had communicated with the commissioner of public works in Chattanooga with a view of ascertaining the read the letter sent in reply to his linquiries. In this it was stated that there were two kinds of asphalt paving in Chattanooga; one variety cost some $2.83 a yard, and other was somewhat more expensive. Brick pavements cost considerably less, and were regarded as excellent. The question of the comparative durability of these several sorts of pavement was not touched upon, and Mr. Muse had gone to Mr. Robert Clayton, city engineer, to find out what he knew on this point. Mr. Clayton said he estimated that to pave Capitol avenue with asphalt would cost about $250 for each lot of fifty feet front, and the brick pavement would cost about $175. Touching the question of durability, Mr. Clayton did not enlighten him. Mr. Muse said that the committee desired him simply to make this

A Test. In order to ascertain the sense of the meeting on the subject Judge Dorsey moved that Capitol avenue be repaved. This motion was

General Wright moved that the committee be continued in power; that it prosecute its inquiries as to the details of paving—cost, durability, etc.; that it proceed at the time to secure the names of the property owners who are in favor of asphalt or other pavement; and that the committee report at the next meeting. This was unanimously

On motion of Mr. George Muse, Major John Fitten was added to this committee.

The interchange of views disclosed a una nimity of sentiment in favor of having Capitol avenue paved, from Hunter street to Crumley street, with the best sort of asphalt. And al most without exception those present ex-pressed a desire for quick action.

Better Street Car Service.

Mr. Henry Hillyer, chairman of the committee on street car service, made a verbal mittee on street car service, made a verbal report, in substance as follows:
"I and other members of the committee made several efforts to have a conference with Mr. Joel Hurt, of the Atlanta Consolidated street railway, touching the poor service in this part of the city, but until today we could not see him. According to appointment we had a conference this morning at 11 o'clock. Mr. Hurt received us pleasantly and heard us patiently. He admitted that our grievance was just. We found him exceedingly courteous and considerate, and he seemed anxious his patrons in this as well as he the city as we could. He was willing to see done that could be done for an immediate improvement of the service. He gave us the reasons why the electric line on Capitol avenue could not be completed this year. He said that he was prohibited from aving the tracks in Alabama street during the season, and intimated that the busy sea son would end about Christmas. There was another reason he gave for delay. The company is bound to complete its West End line or forfeit a large sum of money. Then all the available force is busy preparing for the Piedmont exposition. These reasons given by Mr. Hurt for delay in laying the tracks for the Hurt for delay in laying the tracks for the electric line impressed us as reasonable. Mr. Hurt went on to teil us that he proposes to make this line connect with one of the other lines—probably the West Peachtree—thereby giving us a through connection. In the meantime—at once—he says he will take the meantime—at once—he says he will take steps to improve our car service. He will add cars and put on better cars, and will lay two more turnouts. And instead of a fifteen-minute schedule, we will have cars running every seven and a half minutes. We gladly received these assurances from Mr. Hurt, and feel gratified in reporting them to this meeting.

This was good news, and the members were all highly pleased.

Captain Ponder offered a resolution that the chairman be requested to write Mr. Joel Hurt a letter commending his fair and liberal spirit, and to thank him for his assurances. This was unanimously adopted.

The Mysterious Actions of a Cat Probably Saved a Lady's Life.

CARROLLTON, [Ga., October 8.—[Special.] Mrs. R. J. Gaines had a very peculiar experience at her home below Roopville the other night. She said that she had noticed a cat's night. She said that she had noticed a cat's peculiar actions around a certain bureau all the afternoon, and she thought that a mouse was in the bureau and that was the reason the cat kept a continual watch at the bureau. Just about dusk Mrs. Gaines had occasion to go into the bureau and opened a drawer. Just as she did this she thought of the cat's actions and, being like all ladies, having a deadly dread for a mouse, she went for a lamp and looked into the bureau drawer, and to her astonishment there lay a large rattlesnake colled up in the drawer sleeping as sweetly as a queen. Mrs. Gaines says if she had put her hand into the drawer, and she would have done so had not she thought of the cat's actions that evening, it would have hit the done so had not she thought of the car's ac-tions that evening, it would have hit the rough snake the first thing. The question is how that snake got into the bureau. It must have crawled in when the drawer was open for it could not have got in otherwise. He Was Ready with His Pistol. BIRMINGHAM, Ala., October 8.—[Special.]—At Clifton, a suburb, last night, the wife of Pinck Scales got up and went out for some purpose, leaving her husband asleep. When she came in the noise of opening the door awoke him. He sprang out of bed, pistol in hand, supposing it was a burgiar, and fired on his wife twice be fore he discovered his fatal error. One buildt entered her stomach and was fatal.

Matching for the Airship.

ALBANY, Ga., October 8.—[Special.]—
The airship was eagerly watches for by the citizens of Albany on Sunday morning. A telegram was received Monday morning stating that the ship had stopped in an old field near Lumpkin on account of some of the machinery being out of order. How long it will require to repair the damage is not known.

Torn Up by a Gin. CONVERS, Ga., October 8.—[Special.]—
Mr. Wilson Huff had his hand badly torn up

SHE STOOPS TO CONQUER---AND SHE DID It was a charming treat, after a month of burntcork and horse-play, farce and failure, to witness the chaste and clever bit of outside acting last night at the pretty little Edgewood avenue

From the parting of the portiere curtain on Goldsmith's famous old comedy, "she Stoops to

Blessed by nature with a winsome face, big innocent, roguish eyes, and a wealth of chie, she perfectly portrayed this difficult role of lady and barmaid. Mr. Wilfred Clarke as "Tony Lumpkin," the silly, mischievous brother and mirthful marplot—was "The Pink of Courtesy and Circumspection," as his mother called him—and spring instantly into favor with his house as a clean and catchy comedian.

Mr. Clarke is a son of the famous English comedian, John Sleeper Clarke, and a nephew of Edwin Booth, and, though yet a young man, has done some brilliant work in old English comedy. In the higher role of "Pillicoddy" he was equally as good and sent the audience home with a pain in their sides. Miss Adela Sawyer as "Constance Neville," was pretty and as jolly a hoyden as ever outwitted a cross old annt.

Mr. Walter Hale—the handsome devils," a painstaking, clever actor, seemingly all unconscious of the flurry he was creating in the boxes—but then that's "a way he has."

Miss Helen Mar as Dorothy Hardcastle—"the old hen," was fair and did the storming passages very violently.

The evening's exercises were opened with prayer by Dr. O. W. Holderby.

This was followed by the singing of some selections from the Chautauqua songs.

They Played "Dixie."

At the Kimball, before the Crocketts left for the depot, Editor Derrick Brown was called upon for a speech. He responded in his usual ready manner, and, in behalf of the visitors, extended their thanks to the Guard and others who had made their visit to Atlanta on a force pleasure.

L. Rodgers were also called upon, and made a few appropriate remarks.
